Against Creative Writing Andrew Cowan, 2022-09-13 The rise of Creative Writing has been accompanied from the start by two questions can it be taught and should it be taught This scepticism is sometimes shared even by those who teach it who often find themselves split between two contradictory identities the artistic and the academic Against Creative Writing explores the difference between writing which is what writers do and Creative Writing which is the instrumentalisation of what writers do Beginning with the question of whether writing can or ought to be taught it looks in turn at the justifications for BA MA and PhD courses and concludes with the divided role of the writer who teaches It argues in favour of Creative Writing as a form of hands on literary education at undergraduate level and a form of literary apprenticeship at graduate level especially in widening access to new voices It argues against those forms of Creative Writing that lose sight of literary values as seen in the proliferation of curricular couplings with non literary subjects or the increasing emphasis on developing skills for future employment Against Creative Writing written by a writer is addressed to other writers inside or outside the academy at undergraduate or graduate level whether creative or critical Writing Fantasy and the Identity of the Writer Zoe Charalambous, 2019-07-27 This book presents the innovative pedagogy of Writing Fantasy a method for exploring and shifting one's identity as a writer The book draws on qualitative research with undergraduate creative writing students and fills a gap in the literature exploring creative writing pedagogy and creative writing exercises Based on the potential to shift writer identity through creative writing exercises and the common ground that these share with the stance of the Lacanian analyst the author provides a set of guidelines exercises and case studies to trace writing fantasy evidenced in one's creative writing texts and responses about creative writing This innovative work offers fresh insights for scholars of creativity Lacan and psychosocial studies and a valuable new resource for students and teachers of creative writing Creative Writing and Education Graeme Harper, 2015 This book explores creative writing and its various relationships to education through a number of short evocative chapters written by key players in the field At times controversial the book presents issues ideas and pedagogic practices related to creative writing in and around education with a focus on higher education The volume aims to give the reader a sense of contemporary thinking and to provide some alternative points of view offering examples of how those involved feel about the relationship between creative writing and education Many of the contributors play notable roles in national and international organizations concerned with creative writing and education The book also includes a Foreword by Philip Gross who won the 2009 TS Eliot Prize for poetry International Perspectives on Creative Writing in Second Language Education Bee Chamcharatsri, Atsushi Iida, 2022-02-10 This volume explores the instructional use of creative writing in secondary and post secondary contexts to enhance students language proficiency and expression in English as a second or foreign language ESL EFL Offering a diverse range of perspectives from scholars and practitioners involved in English language teaching ELT globally International Perspectives on Creative Writing in Second Language

Assessing Writing to Support Learning Sandra Murphy, Peggy O'Neill, 2022-11-08. In this book authors Murphy and O'Neill propose a new way forward moving away from high stakes test based writing assessment and the curriculum it generates and toward an approach to assessment that centers on student learning and success. Reviewing the landscape of writing assessment and existing research based theories on writing the authors demonstrate how a test based approach to accountability and current practices have undermined effective teaching and learning of writing. This book bridges the gap between real world writing that takes place in schools college and careers and the writing that students are asked to do in standardized writing assessments to offer a new ecological approach to writing assessment. Murphy and O'Neill's new way forward turns accountability inside out to help teachers understand the role of formative assessments and assessment as inquiry. It also brings the outside in by bridging the gap between authentic writing and writing assessment. Through these two strands readers learn how assessment systems can be restructured to become better aligned with contemporary understandings of writing and with best practices in teaching. With examples of assessments from elementary school through college chapters include guidance on designing assessments to address multiple kinds of writing integrate reading with writing and incorporate digital technology and multimodality. Emphasizing the central role that teachers play in systemic reform the authors offer sample assessments developed with intensive teacher involvement that support learning and provide information for the evaluation of programs and schools. This book is an essential resource for graduate students instructors scholars and policymakers in writing assessment composition and English education.
