Acute Geriatric Care: from Hospital to Territorial Charge Nicola Vargas, Andrea Fabbo, Antonio M Esquinas, 2024-02-22 This book is focused on geriatric patients in critically ill conditions in the Emergency Room Their percentage is very high about 60% of the total percentage of patients and the availability of intensive care admission is reduced for them as clearly shown during last Covid 19 pandemic However the modern approach is not yet able to stop the frailty cascade after hospitalization In this book authors offer an analysis to overcome this gap The volume contains two main sections in the first one authors discuss recommendations and guidelines for setting organizations and treatment through different case reports of practical management of critically ill geriatric patients especially patients treated with noninvasive ventilation In the second part they analyze the territorial networks that take charge of the older patients Furthermore a chapter will be reserved to a comparative investigation of the different types of hospital territorial integration in Europe The book written by renowned experts in their fields and by their teams represents a new tool rich of suggestions for all those physicians involved in the management of this frail population

Andrew Bush,Giorgio Piacentini,Francesca Santamaria,Nicola Ullmann,Renato Cutrera,2019-09-23 Globally severe asthma is defined by the WHO as either A untreated severe asthma B difficult to treat severe asthma and C treatment resistant severe asthma Untreated severe asthma is a political problem the children do not have access to the basic tools for asthma management and when this is corrected asthma outcomes are transformed The problem in difficult to treat severe asthma is not the airway disease but co morbidities and behavioral factors This is the group in which there are most asthma deaths underscoring that severe asthma cannot be solely defined by levels of prescribed therapy Treatment resistant severe asthma is rare and challenging and the problem is the airway pathology These children require new and innovative therapies

Unconscious information processing in executive control Nicola De Pisapia, The aim of this Frontiers Research Topic is to review and further explore the topic of unconscious processing in executive control Executive control refers to the ability of the human brain mostly associated with prefrontal cortex activity to regulate the processing involved in the execution of novel or complex goal directed tasks Previous studies or models of human cognition have assumed that executive control necessarily requires conscious processing of information This perspective is in line with common sense and personal introspection which suggest that our choices are intentional and based on conscious stimuli Nevertheless in the last few years several behavioural and cognitive neuroscience studies have put under scrutiny this assumption Cumulating evidence is now showing that prefrontal executive control can involve or be triggered by unconscious processing of information with consequent effects on observed behaviours One of the main methods adopted to study such unconscious mechanisms is masked priming consisting in presenting visually masked stimuli which nonetheless are shown to affect goal directed behaviour or influence constructs linked to executive control and prefrontal cortex activity e g task set representation response inhibition conflict monitoring error detection reward processing emotion regulation and task switching This area of research is relatively young and while scientific evidence is emerging no general consensus has been reached yet on how to interpret these early findings some researchers accept that executive control can involve unconscious processing others momentarily put aside in first approximation this issue others criticize this possibility on theoretical grounds e.g. pointing to the need of better definitions of terms such as control conflict and consciousness or based on experimental findings. At this stage it appears necessary that researchers in the field make a collective effort to deepen the understanding of the unconscious mechanisms involved in executive control. This Research Topic will focus on neuroscience but it will welcome contributions on purely behavioural and psychophysiological studies, patient reports, computational investigations as well as philosophical and historical analyses of the relationship between executive control and consciousness. In particular we encourage experts in this field to submit contributions in the form of a reviews, opinions and discussions on existing literature concerning unconscious processing of information in executive control, b) original research articles both behavioural only and neuroimaging studies on unconscious processing of information in executive control, c) discussions and opinions on new methodologies to investigate this issue e.g. other than masked priming which has been the technique of choice in most of the existing studies.
