

GEOMETRIC PROPOSITIONS

If the sum of the three angles in a triangle is greater than 180°, then the triangle does not exist.

$$A + B + C > 180^\circ \quad A + B + C = 180^\circ \quad A + B < 180^\circ$$

If two lines intersect, then the opposite angles are equal.

If two lines intersect in such a way that the corresponding angles formed by the intersecting lines are not equal then they are called congruent.

Conversely, if two lines are parallel, then all the angles designated as congruent and all the angles designated as supplementary.

In any figure having four angles, the sum of the interior angles equals 360° degrees.

$$A + B + C + D = 360^\circ$$

GEOMETRIC PROPOSITIONS

If two radii are equal in length, then the angle at the center between them is also equal.

If two radii are equal in length, then the angle between them passes through the centers of the two circles that have been drawn through the same angle.

If two congruent angles coincide, then the angle between the radii is also equal. That is, if two congruent angles coincide, then the angle between the radii is also equal.

If two angles having their vertex at the periphery of a circle with radii drawn to the same chord are equal.

Angle $A = B$, then C is also equal to the central angle.
