Best Choice Scenario Cards

These cards range in difficulty. Choose scenarios that best match

STICKY SITUATIONS

Students draw one card at a time, discuss it in small groups, and share ideas. Following the cards, each student takes the "Best Choice" card. How did you respond to your? Be sure to write a note to help you find the most thoughtful decisions about your life. Was there anything you did to make something positive and helpful happen? How did you feel? What did you think? Do you think you made the right choice?

You are in the cafeteria and see someone get into an argument. You know you should get away from it, but you're not sure. There is only one way to get out of there. What do you do?

It is a windy day and you are walking. You see a $5 bill on the ground. You know you should pick it up, but you're not sure. What do you do?

You need to catch a school bus to make it to your brother's game. You know it's only one day for the team you really want to join. You should go, but you're not sure. What do you do?

Someone younger than you is making a bad choice. You should tell them, but you're not sure. What do you do?

Weighing My Choices

Read the scenarios and discuss what the best choice of action is. Weigh the positives and negatives consequences of your choice. If helpful, why, explain to your class. For the final, write a note about what you did to help someone else.

Scenario: You are the manager of a school newspaper. You have to decide whether to publish a story about a student who is having a hard time. You know you should publish it, but you're not sure. What do you do?

Positive Consequences:
What good can happen from your choice?

Negative Consequences:
What bad can happen from your choice?

Decision-making Skills for Middle School Students Sherrel Bergmann, Gerald J. Rudman, 1985-01-01 Early adolescence is a time when students require adult assistance to become accurate and effective decision makers and problem solvers Because of the fragmented nature of society the family structure and the schooling process schools need to establish a nonthreatening environment in which students can discuss the issues related to growing up A decision making course in the middle school can become that program Results of the first six years of the decision making course at Elm Place Middle School in Highland Park Illinois are described illustrating a definite positive response on the part of all students The logistics for designing and implementing such a program in the middle school are discussed Teaching strategies projects and activities are outlined Sample activities are appended along with sample communications to parents and students JD
