

MFPT-5.2.6 Topic: 26. Migration

Migration is the movement of individuals, families, or groups of people from one place to another, usually for a permanent or temporary period of time. Migration is a complex process involving a movement of people from a home place to a new place, usually, for work, study, or leisure.

Migration has different types; you need to know about family migration when families migrate with family, or economic migration when people move to another place to work or business purposes. While economic migration is not free, while others, people move after following specific purposes. The most common migration that you can observe here is that we humans move because of environmental or political reasons. These are reasons of economic nature because the human race migrates to earn a living.
