Operation Pied Piper The Wartime Evacuation Of Schoolchildren From London And Berlin 1938 46:

Operation Pied Piper Niko Gärtner, 2012-07-30 This study compares British and Third Reich evacuation schemes during WWII focusing on policy development and execution in London and Berlin It explores operational aspects themes of agency citizenship childhood and the state individual relationship appealing to historians policymakers educators and former evacuees

Women and Evacuation in the Second World War Maggie Andrews, 2019-08-08 Groups of young evacuees standing on railway stations with gas masks and cardboard suitcases have become an iconic image of wartime Britain but their histories have eclipsed those of women whose domestic lives were affected This book explores the effects of this unparalleled interference in the domestic lives of women looking at the impact on everyday experience and on ideas of femininity domesticity and motherhood Maggie Andrews argues that wartime evacuation is important for understanding the experience and the contested meanings of domesticity and motherhood in the 20th century As this book shows evacuation represents a significant and unrecognised area of women s war work and precipitated the rise of competing public discourses about domestic labour and motherhood

The Hidden Victims Cormac Ó Gráda, 2024-09-03 For example while the human toll of the Jewish Holocaust is generally agreed to have been about 6 million the tolls of two other war genocides those of the Armenian community in Turkey during World War I and of the European Roma community during World War II cannot be determined with any precision Scholarly estimates of these range from 0.6 to 1.2 million and from at least 130 000 to between 250 000 and 500 000 During World War II Chinese civilians faced both a civil war and Japanese occupation and no estimate of the resulting civilian deaths which range from an implausibly low 2.5 million to 20 million is reliable The book shows that the single biggest cause of civilian deaths during the two wars were famines some of which are familiar and well documented while others have attracted research only recently and a few await systematic analysis

Learning mobility, social inclusion and non-formal education Maurice Devlin, Søren Kristensen, Ewa Krzaklewska, Magda Nico, 2017-12-01 How do we involve less advantaged young people in mobility projects and how do we engineer and implement these projects to make participation a realistic option for all This book presents the state of the art of learning mobility in the very complex and heterogeneous European youth field bringing together contributions from all over the continent The authors present empirical research findings that explore and analyse the experience of participants from a range of different backgrounds in varied learning mobility settings exchanges volunteer service camps and in diverse regions of Europe This volume addresses two interrelated questions first how learning mobility can be used as a tool for inclusion providing disadvantaged and excluded people with opportunities and assets and second how focusing on inclusion can become a more intrinsic part of learning mobility projects and initiatives The book is divided into three parts spanning the range of stages and dimensions of the learning mobility process access reach and target processes strategies and practices and effects outcomes and follow ups Relevant for those with experience but also directed to newcomers to the field this work provides an explanation of the main

A moving and revealing insight into the real experiences of children evacuated during WWII and the families they left behind On 1 September 1939 Operation Pied Piper began to place the children of Britain's industrial cities beyond the reach of the Luftwaffe 1.5 million children pregnant women and schoolteachers were evacuated in 3 days A further 2 million children were evacuated privately the largest mass evacuation of children in British history Some children went abroad others were sent to institutions but the majority were billeted with foster families Some were away for weeks or months others for years Homecoming was not always easy and a few described it as more difficult than going away in the first place In When the Children Came Home Julie Summers tells us what happened when these children returned to their families She looks at the different waves of British evacuation during WWII and explores how they coped both in the immediate aftermath of the war and in later life For some it was a wonderful experience that enriched their whole lives for others it cast a long shadow for a few it changed things for ever Using interviews written accounts and memoirs When the Children Came Home weaves together a collection of personal stories to create a warm and compelling portrait of wartime Britain from the children's perspective From East End to Land's End Susan Soyinka, 2010 Told for the first time this is a unique and heart warming tale of World War Two Jewish evacuees sent to Mousehole Cornwall from London's East End In a time of conflict and atrocities this story of mutual acceptance and integration is an inspiration to modern society From East End to Land's End is the heart warming and inspiring story of the World War Two evacuation of Jews Free School JFS in the East End of London to Mousehole a remote fishing village on the tip of Cornwall In June 1940 around 100 JFS children and 5 of their teachers together with thousands of other London evacuees embarked on the lengthy and exhausting train journey from Paddington to Penzance The JFS group was bussed to Mousehole where the children were billeted with the villagers and Jews Free School Mousehole was established in the premises of Mousehole School Arrangements were made for synagogue services to be held in the church hall of a nearby village while many of the evacuees also attended chapel with their foster families most of whom were strong Methodists Remarkably most of the evacuees quickly integrated into village life and were accepted by the villagers as their own Out of Harm's Way Jessica Mann, 2005 Out of Harm's Way tells the moving and remarkable story of the wartime evacuees who were sent abroad by their families I Was Evacuated Ernie Tomlin, 2023-01-08 When five year old Londoner Ernie Tomlin first learns of Hitler and the impending war he isn't sure what will happen to him and his family Not long after the first air raids and the following devastation to all he has ever known Ernie is evacuated to the countryside and introduced to a whole new world of friendship love and loss In this incredibly poignant and often humorous autobiographical account Ernie Tomlin describes his experience as a child of the Blitz Full of witty anecdotes and heartfelt stories of his youth as a London evacuee this memoir is a testament to the resilience of the youth of wartime Britain

I'm Not Going Back Kitty Wintrob, 2014-07 This forthright memoir is based on the author's experiences as a child evacuee from the East End of London during World War Two Kitty is not a child from the Kindertransport but a Jewish Londoner who is evacuated along with the rest of London's children to the safety of the British countryside But after lodging in a series of foster homes she decides that not even the imminent threat of Nazi bombs can keep her away from her Mum and Uncle Yudi in London A new epilogue brings the story up to war's end and the historic victory celebration outside Buckingham Palace Praise for I'm Not Going Back Kitty recounts life in a country village under the thumb of a dour and cold taskmaster She is a spirited determined youngster whose mind is set upon returning to London She is a very strong and engaging character even at her young age Jewish Book World The details are absorbing Kitty gets completely inside her young personality London Jewish Chronicle Like a friend telling you about her experiences over coffee Marcia Weiss Posner Association of Jewish Libraries At each stage in her full life Ms Wintrob has displayed the same spunk and spirit she did as a 10 year old girl forced to leave her Jewish working class home with no indication where she was going or when she would be back National Post Toronto

Operation Pied Piper Jean Daish, 2013-07 Evacuated Cyril Marlen, 2025-09-03 War is often remembered through the lens of soldiers battles and political leaders but one of its most enduring human stories belongs to those too young to fight the children At the outbreak of the Second World War governments across Europe launched vast evacuation programmes designed to protect their youngest citizens from the horrors of modern warfare Operation Pied Piper in Britain alone uprooted nearly 1.5 million people in just a few days most of them children carrying gas masks and small suitcases their names tied to their coats like parcels Behind every departure lay a mixture of hope fear and heartbreak Evacuated The Wartime Children Who Never Came Home tells the story of those whose journeys ended in permanent separation tragedy or transformation It is both a history and a memorial shining a light on young lives disrupted or lost in the struggle to survive a global conflict From the railway stations of London to the villages of rural Britain the evacuation experience was as varied as the children themselves Some were welcomed with open arms discovering kindness open fields and a different kind of childhood Others were treated as burdens left to endure neglect exploitation or abuse far from the comfort of their families Separation from siblings was common and the sense of abandonment etched scars that lasted long after the war had ended This was not only a British story Across Europe evacuation was a desperate and recurring reality German children were sent out of cities under the Kinderlandverschickung programme to escape Allied bombing raids French and Belgian families fled advancing armies in waves of chaos and panic Millions of Soviet children were forced eastward into the vast interior as Hitler's forces invaded Jewish children were hidden through clandestine networks or sent on the Kindertransport to Britain escaping death but often never seeing their parents again The war scattered children across borders and frontiers making refugees of the most vulnerable Tragically not every child reached safety Ships carrying evacuees across the Atlantic such as the ill fated SS City of Benares were sunk by U boats drowning scores of young passengers Trains and convoys came under aerial attack Refugee camps often overcrowded and unsanitary bred illness and disease that claimed young lives in silence For countless families the promise of safety was shattered in the cruellest of ways Even for survivors coming home was not always possible Some children returned to find their homes destroyed and their parents dead in bombing raids Others particularly Jewish children emerged from hiding only to discover their families had perished in concentration camps Some remained permanently with foster families bonded through years of shared experience while others were adopted their names languages and identities changed forever by the war This book explores the urgent need for evacuation the logistics of moving children by train ship and convoy and the human cost of separation It looks at the daily realities of foster placements the kindness the cruelty the strangeness of living with strangers It examines the toll on parents who endured the agony of separation while carrying the guilt of decisions no parent should ever have to make It broadens the scope beyond Britain to reveal that this was a pan European and even global phenomenon one that bound together millions of stories of loss resilience and survival Blown Away - Seeds on the

Winds of War Ted Baverstock, Emma Calin, 2013-11-13 The touching memoir of a ten year old boy evacuated from London during World War Two Recollections of a bygone era and the spirit of a community during exceptional times Few statements are bigger than war Ted s understatement of innocence speaks a timeless truth that both charms and counsels us Oscar Sparrow In 1939 as Britain faced a fight for survival civilian populations became the frontline in a new horror of industrialised war A total of 3 5 million people were evacuated from British cities during World War Two Among them an assortment of scallywags who exchanged the streets of Dagenham for the lanes of Shapwick in Somerset In this memoir an individual voice adds its power of abiding hope to the volume of human history On the 1st September 1939 at the age of ten Ted Baverstock and his classmates at Dawson Junior School became part of a mass evacuation of London s children to the safety of the countryside The hitherto secret government operation code named Pied Piper had begun School assembly was held in the playground that morning we were then shepherded in double file through the streets that we knew well past our homes where mothers waved to us from their front doors none of us knew the significance of the journey we were about to undertake or where we were bound We felt as though we were on an outing with the school for a few days This is Ted s memoir a record in words and photos of a period of history from the perspective of a young boy The book details his recollections of the shock of being transplanted from an inner city to a rural farming community the joy of discovery and the freedom and innocence of youth in a time gone by It is a testimony to the resilience of children and families to cope in what would be unimaginable circumstances for 21st century Britons A must read for anyone interested in true accounts of life as an evacuee in wartime Britain An ideal gift those wanting to know more about the social history of wartime Britain historians children studying WW2 and of course the folk who were there and lived through it Scroll up and grab a copy today
