Paper Tigers Chinas Nuclear Posture Adelphi Series:

Paper Tigers Jeffrey G. Lewis, 2014 This book traces the evolution of China's nuclear weapons policies, forces and posture. The Untold Story of China's Nuclear Weapon Development and Testing Hui Zhang, 2025-11-25 A comprehensive technical history of China's nuclear warhead development and testing as well as a new framework for understanding China's efforts to modernize its nuclear arsenal. The Untold Story of China's Nuclear Weapon Development and Testing offers the most comprehensive account of China's nuclear weapons development from 1955 to 1996. Hui Zhang examines the purpose and technical specifics of each nuclear test and provides new details about China's pursuit of warhead miniaturization. Based on a number of new Chinese language sources that have not previously been analyzed, this book reveals that China has the ability to produce smaller, lighter warheads than some have suggested, as well as more options for missiles that could carry a larger number of warheads. The book also provides a new framework for understanding China's efforts to modernize its nuclear arsenal and offers clues about the future of China's nuclear program. As the international community watches China's rapid nuclear expansion with concern and in particular as the United States considers whether it will be confronting two peer nuclear armed adversaries, Russia and China, in the future, this book is a significant contribution to the policy debate over a potential new three-way nuclear arms race. Neoclassical Realism and the Underdevelopment of China's Nuclear Doctrine

Paolo Rosa, 2018-04-06 This book addresses the under-researched discourse of the evolution of Chinese nuclear posture and in particular explains the absence from this evolution of a coherent and well-defined operational doctrine. Using a neoclassical realist framework, the book explains why China, after having launched a crash programme in the mid-1950s to develop a nuclear deterrent, did not debate a clear operational doctrine with respect to targeting and employment until the mid-1980s. Handbook of US-China Relations Andrew T.H. Tan, 2016-08-26 This Handbook addresses the key questions surrounding US-China relations: what are the historical and contemporary contexts that underpin this complex relationship? How has the strategic rivalry between the two evolved? What are the key flashpoints in their relationship? What are the key security issues between the two powers? The international contributors explore the historical, political, economic, military and international and regional spheres of the US-China relationship. The topics they discuss include human rights, Chinese public perception of the United States, US-China strategic rivalry, China's defence build-up and cyber war.

Paper Tigers Jeffrey Lewis, 2014-10 This book examines how the nuclear weapons policy, forces and posture of the People's Republic of China have evolved from the mid-1950s to the present. Using newly available open source information, including Chinese language resources, it documents the development of Chinese views about nuclear weapons, China's nuclear weapons testing program, its production of fissile material and the deployment of its current nuclear forces. The author places the debate about the future of China's nuclear posture in the context of its nuclear past, arguing that the United States and China should focus the current dialogue about nuclear weapons on questions of regional security and strategic stability. Arms Control &

This research seeks to understand how the Chinese think about the role of nuclear deterrence and why their nuclear posture is drifting from their declaratory nuclear policy First it will examine the origins and evolution of the Chinese nuclear weapons program to understand their reasons for building the bomb Establishing and characterizing China s past nuclear posture will serve as a base to learn how its nuclear thinking developed through the decades and provide a launching point for surmising where it may go in the future Comparing China s grand strategy to its nuclear posture and policy will clarify why what they say seems to differ from what they do Ultimately the conclusions of this analysis will answer why there are disparities between Chinese nuclear policy and posture Finally this research will consider the implications of China s nuclear posture Throughout the examination consideration is given to Chinese history culture diplomacy media military economy and leadership to reveal the truth behind Chinese rhetoric

Abstract China's as a Military Power Peril Or Paper Tiger ,2020 China's Nuclear Posture and Strategic First-use Graham Gerard Ong-Webb,King's College London. Department of War Studies,2011

This thesis argues that despite China s official declaration of no first use NFU there is a considerably weak firebreak in the country s nuclear posture that is likely to promote strategic nuclear first use during crisis The thesis arrives at this argument through holistic analysis Holism is a deeply established method of thinking in the Chinese tradition and continues to be relevant today It encompasses the idea that all the properties of a given system cannot be determined or explained by its component parts alone It also emphasises the connections between distinctions and even endeavours to transcend distinctions altogether However the salience of holism as a method of analysing Chinese phenomena including matters in the political strategic and military realms continues to be overlooked by the mainstream tendency to produce reductionist type accounts A reductionist type approach cannot test whether China s NFU policy is credible This thesis contributes to scholarship by demonstrating that a holistic approach in contrast can A state s nuclear posture can be defined as the product of its nuclear doctrine and capabilities The argument is grounded in a holistic analysis of 1 the People s Liberation Army s PLA s texts covering its strategic and operational nuclear doctrine and 2 the nuclear and nuclear related capabilities of the PL A Second Artillery which operates the bulk of China s strategic nuclear deterrent The thesis demonstrates the existence of weak firebreaks in both Chinese doctrine and capabilities It finds that China actually possesses a significantly weak NFU doctrine Principally the analysis of this thesis indicates that while China s strategic planners genuinely believe that the imperative of their country s nuclear posture is to uphold deterrence the concepts and capabilities they believe will enhance deterrence are more likely to erode it
