The Impact of Parent Participation and Involvement in Pupils Academic Performance ,2017-11-20 Doctoral Thesis Dissertation from the year 2016 in the subject Education Reading Instruction grade A Atlantic International University EDUCATION course EDUCATION MANAGEMENT language English abstract The mediating role of parents seems to be having a paramount effect on the child development child academic performance child s aspirations and overall child achievement Based on the findings of the study the researcher has been able to identify the effect of parent participation and involvement on the academic performance of their children in primary schools Some of the required areas that require parents to get involved in include providing scholastic materials packing food for lunch attending school meetings and school days providing health care providing safety and security doing voluntary work at school assisting in doing homework providing support to the child and providing life skills among other duties

Parental Involvement and Children's Academic Success Annette M. Villapudua, 2018 Student academic success has been associated with parental involvement in many studies This study explored the relationship between parental involvement at school and at home and the effect it had on student success Information was gathered from students and parents regarding parent involvement at home and at school Student interviews were conducted to gather information regarding after school routines and support at home In addition parent questionnaire provided information on parent school involvement as well as information regarding involvement with homework The data indicated that there is a positive relationship between parental involvement with homework and student academic success Data regarding the relationship between parent involvement at school and academic success was inconclusive However it is important that teachers and parents work together to ensure that students are getting the support they need to be successful

Influences of Parental Expectations and Involvement on Academic Success Kate E. Holmes, California State University, Sacramento, 2013 The percentage of students who graduated on time from California high schools in the 2010 2011 school year rose 1.5% from the previous year However there is still a concerning percentage of students who are choosing to drop out of school California Department of Education 2012 It is groups of these students as well as others whose grades attendance and work completion are inconsistent The desire to determine why students succeed or fail was the catalyst for this study A review of the literature pertaining to this topic revealed a multitude of possible influences to school success However this study focused on only two of these possible influences parental involvement and parental expectations Part of the reason for the focus on these topics was for educators to understand how parental involvement and parental expectations are related to student success in a specific setting thereby bringing possible areas for improvement into the foreground that have the capacity to increase student achievement Data for this study was collected by using student surveys and interviews The surveys were created to measure factors related to parental involvement and parental expectations Approximately sixty students participated in the survey process After the surveys were completed interview questions were generated to expand and explain the initial findings from the survey A total of six students participated in the interviews and responses from five of those interviews were used The data offered by both the surveys and interviews were then analyzed and interpreted providing the study's final conclusions and answers to its research questions This study asked two primary questions 1 For students in an independent study school in Northern California what is the relationship between levels of parental involvement and academic outcomes 2 For this same population of students are the academic expectations parents have for their children related to academic outcomes For the first question it was determined that a positive relationship exists between parental involvement and academic achievement

The answer to the second question was that parental expectations do not influence students to perform at a level that meets their parents expectations

Partnership from the Perspective of Parents and Teachers Audric C. Newchurch,2018-01-29 Parents Matter M.

Warnasuriya,2018-05-17 This book discusses the vital part that parents play in the academic achievement of students It describes the many roles that parents assume in the different educational stages of a child's life from infancy to late adolescence and how these roles ultimately impact students academic and future success The book explores in detail the impact of parent involvement in early childhood education middle junior high high school education and with at risk students Parent involvement is also a critical factor within the school atmosphere The book discusses in detail how parent involvement affects the school's caliber to promote student achievement thus contributing to the overall school improvement process Practical and research based strategies are introduced under each parent role thus enabling the reader whether it be parent school administrators or educators to apply what was read to the real life context within the relevant settings Parental Involvement and Academic Achievement Sarah Christine Goodwin,2016 This research study examined the correlation between student achievement and parents' perceptions of their involvement in their child's schooling Parent participants completed the Parent Involvement Project Parent Questionnaire Results slightly indicated parents of students with higher level of achievement perceived less demand or invitations from their child and that students with higher levels of academic achievement had parents who felt they had the time energy or skills to assist with school related activities The results strongly indicate that students with higher levels of achievement had parents who reported higher levels of involvement in school related activities Page 4 Parental Influence on Educational Success and Wellbeing Gamez, Ana

Maria,2024-05-06 Within parenting a complex dynamic emerges as empirical research intersects with practical applications Parental Influence on Educational Success and Wellbeing navigates uncharted territories in parenting research tackling pivotal issues like culture minority experiences lifespan perspectives disabilities and the convergence of medical and legal dimensions Its uniqueness lies in theoretical exploration and in providing tangible solutions offering parents concrete best practices and strategies This book is an indispensable resource for parents seeking to navigate the multifaceted challenges of nurturing their children in diverse contexts By integrating insights from various dimensions of parenting research the book equips parents with a nuanced understanding of how their actions reverberate through their child's life influencing academic achievement and emotional well being Relational Aspects of Parental Involvement to Support Educational Outcomes William Jaynes,2022-07-18 Offering contributions from international leaders in the field this volume builds on empirically informed meta analyses to foreground relationship based aspects of parental involvement in children's education and learning Chapters explore how factors including parent child communication cultural and parental expectations as well as communication with a child's teacher and school can impact educational outcomes By focusing on relationships between parents teachers and students chapter authors offer a nuanced picture of parental involvement in children's education and learning. Considering variation across countries educational and non educational contexts and challenges posed by parental absence and home schooling the book offers key insights into how parents schools communities and educators can best support future generations. Using multiple forms of research from the relational perspective this volume will be of interest to students scholars and researchers with an interest in educational psychology as well as child development.

School Systems, Parent Behavior, and Academic Achievement Emma Sorbring, Jennifer E. Lansford, 2019-09-17 This volume takes an international and multidisciplinary approach to understanding students academic achievement. It does so by integrating educational literature with developmental psychology and family studies perspectives. Each of the nine chapters focuses on a particular country: China, Colombia, Italy, Jordan, Kenya, the Philippines, Sweden, Thailand, or the United States. It describes the country as a cultural context, examines the current school system and parenting in light of the school system, and provides empirical evidence from that country regarding links between parenting and students academic achievement. The book highlights similarities and differences in education and parenting across these nine countries, all varying widely in socioeconomic and cultural factors that affect schools and families. The volume contributes to greater understanding of links between parenting and academic performance in different cultural groups. It sheds light on how school systems and parenting are embedded in larger cultural settings that have implications for students educational experiences and academic achievement. As two of the most important contexts in which children and adolescents spend time, understanding how schools and families jointly contribute to academic achievement holds promise for advancing the international agenda of promoting quality education for all.

The Effect of Parent Involvement on Student Achievement Onene G. Saloka, 2009 The rationale of this literature review is to demonstrate a relationship between parent involvement and student academic success. Research reviewed all confirm positive correlation and reject the opposite. The key elements include parent involvement, responsibility, and participation in their children's education, collaboration between teacher, parent, student, and school, home learning environment, support. Parental involvement is a mixture of dedication and active participation on the part of the parent to the school and to the student. There are many problems concerned with involvement. Many schools simply do not know how to deal with the nontraditional family and the areas of concern that it represents. The number of solutions that can be used to improve parental involvement are extensive. The most important of these, however, is for the school to be totally devoted. When these solutions are implemented, the effects are great, especially for the student.

leaf 4 Parental Involvement and Pupils' Academic Achievement Yuko Oso Willis, Hamud Abdillahi Mukhtar, 2015-07-15 Parental involvement is participation of parents in regular 2 way meaningful communication about the child's academic learning and other school activities. It is believed that if pupils are to maximize their potential from schooling, then parental support is necessary. Global trend is to give parents increased role in governing schools. In Somaliland, since the introduction of FPE in 2011, parents have assumed a greater role in the running of schools However the influence of parental involvement on pupils academic achievement had not been investigated This study investigated the influence of parental involvement on academic achievement of pupils in public primary schools in Borama District using survey of 291 pupils from 19 public primary schools in Borama District Home teaching F 1 291 3 87 p 024 parenting F 1 291 3 87 p 042 parental communication F 1 291 4 60 p 036 and collaborating F 1 291 5 46 p 020 had significant influence on the academic achievement of pupils in public primary schools in Borama District The study concluded that parental involvement has a significant influence on academic achievement of the pupils

Parent Involvement in Education Melanie R. Scott Stein, Ron Thorkildsen, 1999 This comprehensive review of parent involvement examines more than 200 studies to identify what research says about attitudes toward parent involvement how parent involvement is practiced and how parent involvement affects student achievement The review also identifies research based applications educators can use to implement effective parent involvement practices discusses how schools can involve special populations of parents and describes common barriers to involving parents and what schools can do to remove those barriers Chapter 1 gives a brief history of parent involvement and contends that educators need to know if research provides evidence that parent involvement is an effective educational practice Chapter 2 presents research indicating that educators parents and children agree that parent involvement is important but do not agree on specific aspects of parent involvement Chapter 3 notes that there is a moderate positive relationship between parent involvement and student achievement and that parents expectations of their children s academic achievement have the strongest positive relationship with children s actual achievement level a robust finding with implications for school parent relationships Chapter 4 describes characteristics of strong parent involvement programs identifies major obstacles to such programs and discusses the administrator s role in making changes in parent involvement practices Chapter 5 discusses several ways teachers can provide mechanisms for parent involvement both at school and at home Chapter 6 examines parent involvement in the context of special populations barriers to effective parent involvement cautions about practicing parent involvement promises for parent involvement and guidelines for practicing parent involvement Contains 207 references KB

The Effects of Parent Involvement on Children's Achievement Suzanne Ziegler, 1987 Aspects of communication between home and school are discussed in four chapters Introductory remarks point out two very important messages in the research on the effects of parental involvement The first is that the gap between working class and middle class children in school achievement is explained in substantial part by certain differing patterns of child parent and parent school interaction A second and even more important message is that school personnel can intervene positively and efficiently to teach most parents to be as effective as some parents already are Chapter I focuses on parental involvement with children at home at the preschool primary junior intermediate and senior levels Chapter II concerns parental involvement at school Chapter III discusses the whys and hows of connecting parents and schools Chapter IV deals with overcoming barriers and getting commitment in parent teacher partnerships A bibliography is
