I thought running a marathon was hard, but it seems that there are a lot of people out there looking for more ~~ever~~ difficult challenges. Take the North Pole Marathon for example. This is a standard marathon distance to be run in ~~simply~~ the ~~worse~~ weather conditions possible. I can't even begin to imagine running in temperatures of -30 degrees Celsius, let alone running on ice rather than earth. If you prefer the heat though, how about the Death Valley Run of 21.7 km? It takes place in July in temperatures of 48 degrees Celsius which must make it by far away the hottest run in the world. Finally, if you prefer something a little long, there's always the Double Ironman. An 8 km swim, followed by a 360 km bike ride and an 84 km run sounds like the longest triathlon ever.
