These figures have been collected using a conversion factor published by Department for Business, Energy & Industrial Strategy of the UK government in 2020. Greenhouse gases (GHG) can be measured by recording emissions at source, by continuous emissions monitoring or by estimating the amount emitted using activity data (such as the amount of fuel used) and applying relevant conversion factors (e.g. carbonic values, emission factors, etc.). These conversion factors allow organisations and individuals to calculate GHG emissions from a range of activities, including energy use, water consumption, waste disposal and recycling, and transport activities. Whilst OE products may form part of a furniture installation, they are classified as electrical products and are manufactured to meet the safety and environmental standards applicable to such products, e.g. RoHS, REACH and the EU Eco-Design directive. Data collected as of November 2022.
