Between Imitation and Innovation Robert Boyer, Elsie

Charron, Ulrich Jurgens, Steven Tolliday, 1998-11-19 Recent years have seen intense debates among management and academics on the rise of lean production and Japanization Some authors have stressed the universal impact of new forms of work organization and best practice while others have questioned the limits of convergence stressed the weight of national contexts or societal effects or highlighted the evolutionary effects of unpredictability in the external environment The international automobile industry has been a focus for much of this debate and this book written by a team of leading international researchers in the field uses this industry to examine in detail the actual practice of the transfer and adaptation of productive models and the trajectories of innovation compromise and failure that can result Case studies cover in detail the Japanese transplant experience in North America and the global experience of hybrid production systems in Europe Latin America and Asia The book contributes to theoretical discussions about the transfer adaptation or convergence of productive models In particular the authors argue that direct transplantation or imitation of these models is rarely feasible or even desirable Systems cannot be transferred without being significantly reshaped Instead the book focuses on the process of hybridization the complex interaction of productive models with national and societal effects Hybridization it is argued is inevitable But this should be seen not simply as a process of compromise and retreat but also as an important dynamic of innovation and learning This book is from the French based international research network GERPISA Groupe d étude de recherche permanent sur l industrie et les salariés de l automobile See related titles below International Developments Towards Improved Car-sharing Services Bodo Schwieger,2004 The main topic of this book is the introduction of a new mobility service One Way and Open End car sharing Dr Bodo Schwieger describes a process starting from the anticipation and measurement of customer s needs to the introduction of innovative services The described field test is second to none as it offers gasoline vehicles in a One Way rental scheme within an urban environment 25 Smart vehicles were based at 8 stations and available to 4 000 car sharing customers This service is being analyzed for efficiency and customer reactions In a second step other car sharing companies in Hamburg Germany Seattle Washington Kyoto and Tokyo Japan are analyzed for their approaches to improving their services combines technological competence marketing know how and customer analysis Car sharing has recently become a highly relevant topic with the fast expansion of the American providers and the market entry of Deutsche Bahn AG and Shell AG in Germany The method respects the large amount of interdependence with other services and also the multiplicity of different customer groups Thus it can be transferred to other transportation services and used as a beginner s guide to service analysis The book is based on the author s dissertation which was accepted at the Technical University of Berlin in 2003 It delivers on 150 pages densely accumulated information It is worth reading for anyone who is involved in introducing and developing new services either within transportation or in related branches
