More Scenes From The Rural Life:

More Scenes from the Rural Life Verlyn Klinkenborg, 2013-07-02 Verlyn Klinkenborg's regular column The Rural Life is one of the most read and beloved in the New York Times. Since 1997 he has written eloquently on every aspect large and small of life on his upstate New York farm including his animals, the weather and landscape and the trials and rewards of physical labor as well as broader issues about agriculture and land use behind farming today. Klinkenborg's pieces are admired as much for their poetic writing as for their insight: peonies are the sheepdog of flowers, dry snow tumbles off the angled end of the plow blade as if each crystal were completely independent, almost charged with static electricity, and land is most valuable for its silence, its freedom from language.

Ryden, 2001-11 Kent Ryden does not deny that the natural landscape of New England is shaped by many centuries of human manipulation but he also takes the view that nature is everywhere close to home as well as in more remote wilderness in the city and in the countryside. In Landscape with Figures he dissolves the border between culture and nature to merge ideas about nature experiences in nature and material alterations of nature. Ryden takes his readers from the printed page directly to the field and back again. He often bypasses books and goes to the trees from which they are made and the landscapes they evoke then returns with a renewed appreciation for just what an interdisciplinary historically informed approach can bring to our understanding of the natural world. By exploring McPhee's The Pine Barrens and Ehrlich's The Solace of Open Spaces the coastal fiction of New England surveying and Thoreau's The Maine Woods Maine's abandoned Cumberland and Oxford Canal and the natural bases for New England's historical identity Ryden demonstrates again and again that nature and history are kaleidoscopically linked.
