Mortal Questions Thomas Nagel, 2012-03-26 Thomas Nagel's Mortal Questions explores some fundamental issues concerning the meaning, nature and value of human life. Questions about our attitudes to death, sexual behaviour, social inequality, war and political power are shown to lead to more obviously philosophical problems about personal identity, consciousness, freedom and value. This original and illuminating book aims at a form of understanding that is both theoretical and personal in its lively engagement with what are literally issues of life and death.

Mortal Questions Thomas Nagel, 1979 New Statesman Society, 1993-05 International Development Seth Appiah-Opoku, 2017-04-26 This book brings together leading researchers in the field of international development to examine issues relating to food security, health, rural development, human development and institutional strengthening in developing countries. Based on empirical research, the book discusses a variety of topics including nutrition-sensitive agricultural development in South Africa, household food security in Tanzania, medical research in Egypt, child mortality in Christian and Islamic countries, spot improvement of rural roads in Asia and Africa, resilience in natural disaster, the relationship between foreign aid and human development in Africa, and finally developing competencies for rural development project management through the creation of local action groups in Argentina. The book is insightful and serves as an important reference material on international development.

The Nonhuman Turn Richard Grusin, 2015-03-09 Edited by Richard Grusin of the Center for 21st Century Studies, this is the first book to name and characterize and therefore consolidate a wide array of current critical theoretical and philosophical approaches to the humanities and social sciences under the concept of the nonhuman turn. Each of these approaches is engaged in decentering the human in favor of a concern for the nonhuman understood by contributors in a variety of ways in terms of animals, affectivity, bodies, materiality, technologies, and organic and geophysical systems. The nonhuman turn in twenty-first century studies can be traced to multiple intellectual and theoretical developments from the last decades of the twentieth century: actor network theory, affect theory, animal studies, assemblage theory, cognitive sciences, new materialism, new media theory, speculative realism, and systems theory. Such varied analytical and theoretical formations obviously diverge and disagree in many of their assumptions, objects, and methodologies. However, they all take up aspects of the nonhuman as critical to the future of twenty-first century studies in the arts, humanities, and social sciences. Unlike the posthuman turn, the nonhuman turn does not make a claim about teleology or progress in which we begin with the human and see a transformation from the human to the posthuman. Rather, the nonhuman turn insists, paraphrasing Bruno Latour, that we have never been human; that the human has always coevolved, coexisted, or collaborated with the nonhuman and that the human is identified precisely by this indistinction from the nonhuman Contributors Jane Bennett Johns Hopkins U Ian Bogost Georgia Institute of Technology Wendy Hui Kyong Chun Brown U Mark B N Hansen Duke U Erin Manning Concordia U Montreal Brian Massumi U of Montreal Timothy Morton Rice U Steven Shaviro Wayne State U Rebekah Sheldon Indiana U

The Meaning of Terrorism C. A. J. Coady, 2021-05-27 In The Meaning of Terrorism C A J Coady clarifies competing and confusing definitions of terrorism and of terrorist acts that proliferate in specialist publications as well as in popular discourse Coady aims to construct a concept of a terrorist act that both reflects a central core of these different understandings which provides for a more coherent and fruitful discussion of terrorism and its moral and political significance The goal is therefore not only to gain clarity about what the term designates but also to probe various dimensions of the moral meaning of our understanding of terrorism for complex social and political circumstances The opening chapters sketch the commonly propounded definitions and propose what Coady calls a tactical definition with a focus on terrorist acts as violent attacks upon non combatants or innocents The benefits of such an approach are laid out and defences against numerous objections that can be and have been made to it are given The book critically discusses theorists who argue that independent of its definition terrorist acts have a special and profoundly disturbing moral significance Coady explores the scope and meaning of non combatant status and its relation to recent controversies in the philosophy of war and discusses important attempted philosophical defences of terrorism for certain contexts The book closes with a discussion of the moral challenges facing attempts at counter terrorism and examines the commonly held view that religion is particularly prone to cause terrorism or some of its most extreme manifestations Journal of Comparative Literature & Aesthetics ,1997 *Scott: The lord of the Isles.
