These two volumes update the earlier Means Tested Transfer Programs in the United States with a discussion of the changes in means tested government programs and the results of new research over the past decade. A number of these programs have seen substantial increases in expenditures including Medicaid, the Earned Income Tax Credit, the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program and subsidized housing programs. For each program the contributors describe its origins and goals, summarize its history and current rules and discuss recipients' characteristics and the types of benefits they receive. Matters Judith Bartfeld, Craig Gundersen, Timothy Smeeding, James P. Ziliak, 2015-11-25. In 1963 President Kennedy proposed making permanent a small pilot project called the Food Stamp Program FSP. By 2013 the program's fiftieth year more than one in seven Americans received benefits at a cost of nearly $80 billion. Renamed the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program SNAP in 2008 it currently faces sharp political pressure but the social science research necessary to guide policy is still nascent. In SNAP Matters Judith Bartfeld, Craig Gundersen, Timothy M. Smeeding, and James P. Ziliak bring together top scholars to begin asking and answering the questions that matter. For example what are the antipoverty effects of SNAP? Does SNAP cause obesity? Or does it improve nutrition and health more broadly? To what extent does SNAP work in tandem with other programs such as school breakfast and lunch? Overall the volume concludes that SNAP is highly responsive to macroeconomic pressures and is one of the most effective antipoverty programs in the safety net but the volume also encourages policymakers, students, and researchers to continue examining this major pillar of social assistance in America.
