genetic science scholarship in recent years has succeeded in challenging many entrenched assumptions about the material and biological status of human bodies Likewise in the study of Chinese cultures accelerating globalization and the resultant hybridity have called into question previous assumptions about the boundaries of Chinese national and ethnic identity The problem of identifying a single or definitive referent for the Chinese body is thornier than ever By facilitating fresh dialogue between fields as diverse as the history of science literary studies diaspora studies cultural anthropology and contemporary Chinese film and cultural studies Embodied Modernities addresses contemporary Chinese embodiments as they are represented textually and as part of everyday life practices The book is divided into two sections each with a dedicated introduction by the editors The first examines Thresholds of Modernity in chapters on Chinese body cultures in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries a period of intensive cultural political and social modernization that led to a series of radical transformations in how bodies were understood and represented The second section on Contemporary Embodiments explores body representations across the People's Republic of China Taiwan and Hong Kong today ability to encapsulate these films particularities with cogent examples and at the same time demonstrate a thorough familiarity with the historical context in which this endlessly fascinating genre arose David Desser professor emeritus University of Illinois at Urbana Champaign Eschewing a reductive chronology Yip offers a persuasive detailed and sophisticated excavation of martial arts cinema which is read through and in relation to rapid transformation of Hong Kong in the 1960s and 1970s An exemplar of critical genre study this book represents a significant contribution to the discipline Yvonne Tasker professor of film studies and dean of the Faculty of Arts and Humanities University of East Anglia
