To the left, a person in a pink shirt is sitting on a bench, looking away from the group. The hallway has white walls and a light-colored floor. A dark blue vertical bar is on the right side of the image.

Regulating Competition Susanna Fellman,Martin Shanahan,2015-12-22 Cartels trusts and agreements to reduce competition between firms have existed for centuries but became particularly prevalent toward the end of the 19th century In the mid 20th century governments began to use so called cartel registers to monitor and regulate their behaviour This book provides cases studies from more than a dozen countries to examine the emergence application and eventual decline of this form of regulation Beginning with a comparison of the attitudes to regulation that led to monitoring rather than prohibiting cartels this book examines the international studies on cartels undertaken by the League of Nations before World

War II This is followed by a series of studies on the context of the registers including the international context of the European Union and the importance of lobby groups in shaping regulatory outcomes using Finland as an example Section two provides a broad international comparison of several countries registers with individual studies on Norway Australia Japan Germany Sweden and the Netherlands After examining the impact of registration on business behaviour in the insurance industry this book concludes with an overview of the lessons to be learnt from 20th century efforts to regulate competition With a foreword by Harm Schroter this book outlines the rise and fall of a system that allowed nations to tailor their approach to regulating competition to their individual circumstances whilst also responding to the pressures of globalisation that emerged after the Second World War This book is suitable for those who are interested in and study economic history international economics and business history Chapter 10 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 license
