Pervasive Advertising Human Computer Interaction Series:

Pervasive Advertising Jörg Müller, Florian Alt, Daniel Michelis, 2011-09-21 This book looks at the future of advertising from the perspective of pervasive computing. Pervasive computing encompasses the integration of computers into everyday devices like the covering of surfaces with interactive displays and networked mobile phones. Advertising is the communication of sponsored messages to inform, convince and persuade to buy. We believe that our future cities will be digital, giving us instant access to any information we need everywhere like at bus stops on the sidewalk inside the subway and in shopping malls. We will be able to play with and change the appearance of our cities effortlessly like making flowers grow along a building wall or changing the colour of the street we are in. Like the internet as we know it, this digitalization will be paid for by adverts which unobtrusively provide us suggestions for nearby restaurants or cafés. If any content annoys us, we will be able to effortlessly say so and change it with simple gestures and content providers and advertisers will know what we like and be able to act accordingly. This book presents the technological foundations to make this vision a reality.

Soares, 2019-06-03 This book provides readers with a timely snapshot of ergonomics research and methods applied to the design development and prototyping as well as the evaluation, training and manufacturing of products, systems and services. Combining theoretical contributions, case studies and reports on technical interventions, it covers a wide range of topics in ergonomic design including ecological design, cultural and ethical aspects in design, interface design, user involvement and human computer interaction in design as well as design for accessibility and many others. Based on the AHFE 2019 International Conference on Ergonomics in Design held on July 24-28, 2019 in Washington D.C., USA, the book offers a timely guide for both researchers and design practitioners including industrial designers, human computer interaction and user experience researchers.

production engineers and applied psychologists The use of consumer neuroscience in aroma marketing J. Berčík, J. Gálová, A. Pavelka, 2023-09-14 Smell is one of the most sensitive senses and is closely connected with emotions. Everyone has experienced a moment where a scent changed their mood and brought up memories. In this book monitoring of the effect of aromas on consumer emotions is described. It starts with a general overview of the role of scents in marketing and the use of neuroscience tools in monitoring the impact of the stimuli on consumer emotions. Tools used by the authors are a consumer neuroscience tool electroencephalography (EEG) a biometric method that monitors the galvanic skin response or skin perspiration (GSR) and a traditional data collection method a questionnaire. With these tools consumer response to three selected scents were monitored. One of the initial scents was selected and tested under normal restaurant conditions. The authors describe how the information was obtained and how the effect on consumer emotions was determined. The use of consumer neuroscience in aroma marketing concludes with recommendations to improve the effectiveness of aromatisation in practice.

Sensory and aroma marketing Angel A. Carbonell-Barrachina, 2023-08-07 This book explains how sensory and aroma marketing is used by food companies to improve the sales of their products at different locations. It starts with an introductory section about the current relevance of this field and the foundation of how senses can affect consumers' behaviours. Then it moves into different chapters highlighting the importance of each one of the senses in marketing strategies: smell, sight, sound, taste, and touch. Perhaps for readers the role of smell, sight, smell, and taste are obvious in selling strategies and in bringing positive experiences, memories, and feelings, but the book also provides examples of how touch and sound guide consumer decisions. The final chapter looks into the future. Sensory and aroma marketing should be easily understood by university students interested in Food Science and Technology, making sensory marketing reachable and useful at the industry as well as at the academic and research levels. Readers will be able to answer questions which all consumers bear in mind. For example, is it possible to manipulate consumers in choosing a specific food by using a specific aroma or locating the product at a proper height in a supermarket and is it possible to control how much time a consumer spends in a hypermarket by using a specific music rhythm.

Marketing in Customer Technology Environments Devanathan Sudharshan, 2020-04-16 With the rise of virtual reality, augmented reality, the internet of things, and more, customers are more engaged, more involved, and easier to reach than ever while being inundated with increasing amounts of marketing material. This straightforward guide takes you through these new technologies and shows how to leverage them to reach new markets.

WMC, 2002 Ubiquitous Computing Neville Anthony Stanton, 2001-11-01 This special issue draws together some of the contemporary research and development of ubiquitous computing, most of which was foretold by Licklider 1960 and Weiser 1991. Computers are ubiquitous in terms that they are everywhere, but does this mean the same as ubiquitous computing? The convergent device view posits the computer as a tool through which anything and everything can be done. The divergent device view offers a world where microprocessors are embedded in everything and communicating with one another. This debate is implicitly present in this issue A Design Space for Pervasive Advertising on Public Displays Florian Alt,2013-03-01 Today people living in cities see up to 5000 ads per day many on public displays More and more of these public displays are networked and equipped with sensors making them part of a global infrastructure that is currently emerging Such displays provide the opportunity to create a benefit for society in the form of immersive experiences and relevant content In this way they can overcome the display blindness that evolved over the years Two main reasons prevent this vision from coming true first public displays are stuck with traditional advertising as the driving business model Second no common ground exists for researchers or advertisers that outline important challenges The main contribution of this thesis is presenting a design space for advertising on public displays that identifies important challenges mainly from an HCI perspective The results are envisioned to provide a basis for future research and for practitioners to shape future advertisements on public displays in a positive way Readings in Human-computer Interaction Ronald M.
