Many students come to this course with negative feelings, perhaps because they have heard that the course includes a certain amount of quantitative material (which many feel uncomfortable with), or perhaps because the course strikes them as "how to run a factory." Others seem to have very little idea about what operations management is. I view the initial meeting with my classes, and this first chapter, as opportunities to dispel some of these notions, and to generate enthusiasm for the course.

Highlights of the chapter include the following:

1. Operations as one of the three main functional concerns of most organizations.
2. The role and job of the operations manager as a planner and decision-maker.
3. Different ways of classifying (and understanding) production systems.
4. System design versus system operation.
5. Major characteristics of production systems.
6. Contemporary issues in operations management.
7. Operations as essentially managerial (planning, staffing, etc.)
8. The historical evolution of production/operations management.
9. Manufacturing operations versus service operations.
10. The need to manage the supply chain.

Reading: Why Manufacturing Matters

1. Given that the U.S. economy is becoming more service based, the percentage of employment in manufacturing is declining while the percentage of employment in the service industry is increasing. In addition, the loss of manufacturing jobs results in the loss of service jobs as well (a general estimate is that three service jobs are lost for each manufacturing job lost).
2. The government could offer companies tax incentives for purchasing new equipment or for hiring workers. In addition, the government could work with manufacturing companies to re-train workers in more advanced manufacturing processes.
3. Manufacturing innovation is important because it requires high value-added knowledge work that supports future innovation. Second, innovation generates high-paying jobs. Third, innovation is important because it improves productivity, thereby slowing the outsourcing of jobs to lower wage countries.

The communications environment is rapidly changing. The barriers of traditional phone and data technologies are going to break down and users can expect a true multimedia environment with existing services transferred and new services implemented. New suppliers such as cable companies will compete with interexchange carriers RBOCs and local phone companies for the market share. The differentiator is the price performance ratio of the service under consideration. Today's migrated and new services lack powerful management solutions. Telecom Operations Management Solutions with NetExpert examines the most advanced products available to manage new technologies as well as addresses services such as Advanced telephony, Wireless networks, Commercial broadband, Mass market broadband, Competitive access services, Intercarrier communications, Infrastructure services. This resource also demonstrates how expert systems solve the problem of handling the large volume of data streams from numerous network components. Practical solutions support each example of an application offering first hand operational experience. The book provides practical examples to deploy management solutions based on NetExpert framework from Objective Systems Integrator. The framework consists of the principal modules such as a gateway to managed devices and services as well as the workstation for operators. This framework is extended by point rulesets to manage individual devices by domain rulesets to manage device groups by enterprise rulesets to manage complete telco services. The solution sets support all layers of telecommunication management networks such as element network service and business layers. As a result these solution sets are extremely important to both incumbent and new telco service providers. Numerous cases cover customized solutions for managing wireless networks, sonet rings, ATM, old and new phone services, broadband services and special access services of ISPs. Telecom Operations Management Solutions with NetExpert describes never before published information about solution sets based on an expert system based framework.
