Symposium, 2008 Reversing Deforestation Brent Sohngen, Douglas Southgate, 2024-12-10 Dire reports of surging deforestation in the Brazilian Amazon appear often in international headlines with commentators decrying the destruction of tree covered habitats as an act of environmental vandalism Although forest losses are alarming broader trends are bending in the direction of forest recovery In this book Brent Sohngen and Douglas Southgate address the long term recovery of forests in Latin America The authors synthesize trends in demography agricultural development and technological change and argue that slower population growth and increasing crop and tree yields in conjunction with protecting local ownership of natural resources have encouraged forest transition This book explores how market forces ownership arrangements and the enforcement of property rights have influenced this shift from net deforestation to net afforestation Forest transitions have happened before such as the recovery of tree covered habitats in Europe and the United States Signs of a similar transformation in land use are now present in Latin America Ending deforestation requires a strengthening of forest dwellers property rights while ensuring that biodiversity conservation is no longer treated as a value less externality The resulting forest landscape actively managed for ecosystem services will be more resilient as is needed to overcome climate change

Archival Values Victoria Hoyle, 2022-10-07 The Remaking of Archival Values posits that archival theory and practice are fields in flux and that recent critical archival discourse that addresses neoliberalism racism and the legacies of colonialism and patriarchy represents a disruption not only to established principles but also to the values that underpin them Using critical discourse analysis and comparing theory and practice from the UK and the Anglophone world Hoyle explores the challenges faced by scholars institutions organisations and practitioners in embedding new values She demonstrates how persistent underlying discursive structures about archives have manifested from the late nineteenth century to the present day Qualitative and participatory research in the UK shows how conceptions of archival value arise are expressed and become authorised in practice at international national and local levels Considering what might be learnt from similar debates in public history and cultural heritage studies the book asks if and how dominant epistemologies of the archive can be dismantled amidst systems of power that resist change The Remaking of Archival Values is relevant to researchers and students in the field of archival and information studies as well as practitioners who work with archives around the world It will also speak to the interests of those working in the fields of cultural heritage archaeology museum studies public history and gender and race studies Archives, Recordkeeping and Social Justice David A. when the metaphor of the archive is invoked to cover almost any kind of memory collection or accumulation it is important to re-examine what is entailed politically and methodologically in the practice of feminist archival research. This question is central not only to the renewed interest many disciplines are showing in empirical research in archives but also given the current explosion of online social and cultural data which has fundamentally transformed what we understand an archive to be. Contributors in this collection are keen to mark out what may be novel and what is enduring in the ways in which feminist thought and feminist practice frame archives. Importantly they engage with archives in their historical and political complexity rather than treating them as simple repositories of source material. In this respect contributors are keenly interested in what it means to archive particular materials and not simply in what those materials may hold for feminist researchers. The collection features established and emerging feminist scholars and brings together interventions from across such disciplines as history, literature, modernist studies, cinema studies and law. This book was originally published as a special issue of the journal Australian Feminist Studies.

Deferred Prosecution Agreements and Directors' Liability Natalie Turney, 2024-07-15. This book provides in-depth analysis of deferred prosecution agreements (DPAs), a tool first introduced in the United States and since implemented in the United Kingdom and other jurisdictions. The central focus of the book is the impact of DPAs on company directors. DPAs were first introduced in the US for individuals but are now used predominantly for corporate defendants. In the UK, DPAs have only ever been available for companies. The consideration of individuals in the introductory stage in the UK is explored in depth, as well as the consideration and targeting of individuals in cases that have followed. Company directors are exposed to liability because of this negotiated deal between the company and prosecutors, and this book addresses the key areas of exposure and how various parties should address these risk areas in accordance with the law. The book is an increasingly necessary contribution to the topical discussion of the fallout of unsuccessful prosecutions of individuals implicated in the wrongdoing, constituting the basis of DPAs, calling into question not only treatment of those individuals but also the integrity of the DPA tool itself. It also considers the impact of DPAs and arising exposures on directors and officers, D O liability insurance, therefore covering potential risk areas and the ability of directors to access a defence in protecting themselves from liability. The book covers the impact on all areas of a D O policy, considering D O policy wording and insurance law in doing so, providing a rounded account of issues arising in relation to company directors and how interested parties can act in the best interests of all whilst in accordance with law and policy. The primary audience for this book will be lawyers and practitioners in the corporate crime and/or insurance law space, including general counsels solicitors barristers consultants prosecuting authorities legal academics and so forth It will also be of interest to company directors and to students of financial crime corporate criminal crime and insurance law and will have great international appeal Organisations likely to use the book will include prosecuting authorities law firms working on corporate criminal liability or D O insurance cases and companies looking to protect themselves where there is alleged wrongdoing The Virginia Quarterly Review ,2013 Archival Outlook ,2004 International Business and Globalization: The growth, consequences, and future of globalization John D.
