BOOK JACKET China's New Architecture Christian Schittich,2019-06-04 A new generation is shaping China s architecture In recent years a refreshingly unconventional architectural scene outside the mainstream has established itself in China Its representatives many of whom were trained in the West are known for their sensitive handling of space light and material and by their engagement with context and their own tradition Since Wang Shu one of the most important representatives of the profession won the Pritzker Prize international professionals have become more aware of China s new architecture Twenty fascinating examples of different building typologies many with social relevance as well as an introductory essay illustrate current building activities and provide an insight into the cultural and architectonic influences An introduction to China s current architectural scene Conversation with Pritzker Prize winner Wang Shu 20 fascinating projects by about 15 leading architects Also availabel in German New Architecture in China Christian Dubrau,2008 Today China s rapidly changing urban reality is a big challenge for contemporary Chinese architecture This book presents projects of 40 Chinese architectural practices that make an individual contribution to the new architecture in modern China and help to raise the good reputation of Chinese architecture in the world Contemporary Architecture in China Architectural Creation Magazine, 2011-03-10 Contemporary Architecture in China features new architecture by focusing on 30 structures built since 1999. These buildings located in ten different cities over a vast geographical area cover a wide variety of types from residential to commercial to public use. China's architecture can be seen as a mirror of the country's development as a whole. During China's reform and opening up in the past 30 years the country and its architecture have undergone great changes developing at an overwhelming speed. In the past ten years in particular as China has strengthened its global ties it has also experienced increasingly close cooperation between Chinese and foreign architects. This communication and exchange of ideas has resulted in an impressive number of internationally recognized design projects. While introducing details of construction including date location use and technical information the book also focuses on the aesthetic contribution these innovative buildings have made to China's urban landscape. The book's abundant images further enhance the reader's understanding of architectural styles and design features. Developments in construction and engineering as well as trends in architectural design can also be traced giving readers a better understanding of today's China and its dynamic architecture.

Contemporary Building Design by Western Architects in China Razak Basri, 2011-08 Doctoral Thesis Dissertation from the year 2010 in the subject Art Architecture History of Construction Atlantic International University course Doctorate in Architecture PhD language English abstract China is transforming in terms of economy social culture and physical development. Due to this rapid urban development in China threatens the urban fabric of Chinese cities. Development has attempted to balance strong Western influences with traditional Chinese forms and has met mixed results. Although it is already in existence of a new current of Chinese regionalism in architecture but this trend could be further improved by careful applications of the principles of architecture. This thesis presents five case studies of current Chinese completed building projects in two major urban settings Beijing and Shanghai designed by Western architects. Each case study is examined in each of the basic elements of architecture in relation to traditions and modern architecture. These case studies are then used as the foundation for specific recommendations for future development of contemporary Chinese architectural regionalism in particular focusing on ways to integrate traditional or vernacular techniques devices and forms with modern needs modern technologies and foreign influences in order to enhance the regional culture and built environment. There is distinction made between Beijing and Shanghai in which Beijing is more of a historic city emphasizing Chinese government while Shanghai is more of an economic nerve of China emphasizing trade finance and international business. Together the two cities form the forefront of the built environment showcase of China.

Neue Architektur in China Christian Dubrau, 2008 This book presents the work of 40 architectural practices in China. It includes a brief outline of each practice plus photographs and some plans of their designs.

Ding,2016-03-09 For the past 30 years The Chinese journal Time Architecture Shidai Jianzhu has focused on publishing innovative and exploratory work by emerging architects based in private design firms who were committed to new material theoretical and pedagogical practices In doing so this book argues that the journal has engaged in the presentation and production of a particular form of critical architecture described as an intermediate criticality as a response to the particular constraints of the Chinese cultural and political context The journal's publications displayed a dual critique a resistant attitude to the dominant modes of commercial building practice characterised by rapid and large scale urban expansion and an alternative publishing practice focusing on emerging independent architectural practitioners through the active integration of theoretical debates architectural projects and criticisms This dual critique is illustrated through a careful review and analysis of the history and programme of the journal By showing how the work of emerging architects including Yung Ho Chang Wang Shu Liu Jiakun and Urbanus are situated within the context of the journal's special thematic editions on experimental architecture exhibition group design new urban space and professional system the book assesses the contribution the journal has made to the emergence of a critical architecture in China in the context of how it was articulated debated presented and perhaps even produced within the pages of the publication itself The protagonists of critical architecture have endeavoured to construct an alternative mode of form and space with strong aesthetic and socio political implications to the predominant production of architecture under the current Chinese socialist market economy To rebel against certain forms of domination and suppression by capital and power is by no means to completely reject them rather it is to use those

The New Architectural Trend in China Danguan Zhang,2016 After the failed Anglo Chinese War of the 1840s China was forced to open to international trade China is still borrowing developing experiments from the West in the distinctive Chinese cultural context By doing so a cultural conflict between China and the West leads to a chaotic time in art and architectural design How can Chinese architects educated and working globally identify Chinese culture when designing and building today's China New buildings in the Chinese urban condition mostly constructed by international firms which is leading to the lack of local unique replaced by global similarity To solve this architectural problem well known Chinese architect Liang Sicheng 1901 1972 first proposed the grammar and language of buildings and transferability of different local architectural language He is the founder of Chinese modern architecture and city planning His ideas still influence most Chinese architects and architecture students According to Liang Sicheng's study the pattern language abstracts from the traditional architecture to state Chinese culture as a valuable tool for future Chinese architectural design This paper begins with a brief discussion of the current cultural situation in China and based on the case studies of Chinese buildings that attempt to combine vernacular culture with contemporary buildings this paper suggests the trend of New China architecture style will lead to a great transition of Chinese contemporary buildings Using the unique Chinese elements from the traditional architecture to reconstruct new Chinese buildings this experiment will also contribute to the worldwide

architectural design for a unique national identity

Chinese Architecture and the Beaux-Arts Jeffrey W. Cody,Nancy Shatzman Steinhardt,Tony Atkin,2011-01-31 In the early twentieth century Chinese traditional architecture and the French derived methods of the cole des Beaux Arts converged in the United States when Chinese students were given scholarships to train as architects at American universities whose design curricula were dominated by Beaux Arts methods Upon their return home in the 1920s and 1930s these graduates began to practice architecture and create China s first architectural schools often transferring a version of what they had learned in the U S to Chinese situations The resulting complex series of design related transplantations had major implications for China between 1911 and 1949 as it simultaneously underwent cataclysmic social economic and political changes After 1949 and the founding of the People s Republic China experienced a radically different wave of influence from the Beaux Arts through advisors from the Soviet Union who first under Stalin and later Khrushchev brought Beaux Arts ideals in the guise of socialist progress In the early twenty first century China is still feeling the effects of these events Chinese Architecture and the Beaux Arts examines the coalescing of the two major architectural systems placing significant shifts in architectural theory and practice in China within relevant contemporary cultural and educational contexts Fifteen major scholars from around the world analyze and synthesize these crucial events to shed light on the dramatic architectural and urban changes occurring in China today many of which have global ramifications This stimulating and generously illustrated work is divided into three sections framed by an introduction and a postscript The first focuses on the convergence of Chinese architecture and the cole des Beaux Arts outlining the salient aspects of each and suggesting how and why the two met in the U S The second section centers on the question of how Chinese architects were influenced by the Beaux Arts and how Chinese architecture was changed as a result The third takes an even closer look at the Beaux Arts influence addressing how innovative practices new schools of architecture and buildings whose designs were linked to Beaux Arts assumptions led to distinctive new paradigms that were rooted in a changing China By virtue of its scope scale and scholarship this volume promises to become a classic in the fields of Chinese and Western architectural history Contributors Tony Atkin Peter J Carroll Yung Ho Chang Jeffrey W Cody Kerry Sizheng Fan Fu Chao Ching Gu Daqing Seng Kuan Delin Lai Xing Ruan Joseph Rykwert Nancy S Steinhardt David VanZanten Rudolf Wagner Zhang Jie Zhao Chen

Exporting Chinese Architecture Charlie Qiuli Xue,Guanghui Ding,2022-08-18 This book studies the unexplored history of China aided architecture erected in the developing world since the 1950s By 2019 over 1 000 buildings had been delivered to more than 160 countries including parliament houses convention centers stadiums gymnasiums theaters schools hospitals libraries railways and stations These projects which have played a significant role in promoting economic transformation cultural engagement and social and environmental well being have largely been overlooked or misunderstood by the international community Why did China donate so many foreign aid buildings How were these buildings built in the remote land of developing countries with intricate influences and limited resources Have they helped modernize the recipient countries. The authors of this book use a wide range of representative projects built in different historic periods and geographical locations as case studies to address the above questions from various perspectives. This book fills an enormous gap in modern architecture in China and the world. It offers architectural students and scholars in various disciplines the necessary knowledge on diplomatic architecture. It informs architects the appropriate methods of cross border design and low tech building. It teaches government officials the best practice of donating and receiving foreign aid buildings and enhances public awareness of cultural diversity in Asia, Africa, Oceania and Latin America. With abundant first hand materials, historical pictures and drawings, the book is a must read for those who are interested in modern architecture and developmental aid in the world. China's architecture abroad, notably in Africa and Asia, has been perceived with both fascination and anxiety. Based on a wealth of sources often difficult to access for scholars from outside China, this book links the history and present of China's architectural mobilities in ways that will stimulate new debates in architectural history and urban studies.

On Chinese Architecture [electronic Resource] Calvin Kar-Fung Chiu, 2006 Building a Revolution Charlie Q. L. Xue, 2006. This book presents a picture of Chinese architecture in transition as the entire economy shifted from being planned and state controlled to being market led. Contemporary Architecture in China Christian Dubrau, 2010. Berlin based writer Dubrau has selected 25 buildings for presentation, each with about eight to ten pages containing full page or double page photos, plans and a page of text describing particularities of context, construction challenges and unique features. His essay on new trends in Chinese architecture and another essay on the subject by Brigitte Hahn Melchor describe some of the economic, social, cultural and environmental forces that are shaping what has been getting built in China much that is extraordinarily innovative and also extraordinarily controversial from both Chinese and international points of view.

Global Perspectives on Critical Architecture Gevork Hartoonian, 2016-03-03. Judging from the debates taking place in both education and practice it appears that architecture is deeply in crisis. New design and production techniques together with the globalization of capital and even skilled labour have reduced architecture to a commodified object. Its aesthetic qualities tapping into the current pervasive desire for the spectacular. These developments have changed the architect's role in the design and production processes of architecture. Moreover, critical architectural theories including those of Breton Heidegger and Benjamin which explored the concepts of technology, modernism, labour and capital and how technology informed the cultural along with later theories from the 1960s which focused more on the architect's theorization of his/her own design strategies seem increasingly irrelevant. In an age of digital reproduction and commodification these theoretical approaches need to be reassessed. Bringing together essays and interviews from leading scholars such as Kenneth Frampton, Peggy Deamer, Bernard Tschumi, Donald Kunze and Marco Biraghi this volume investigates and critically addresses various dimensions of the present crisis of architecture. It poses questions such as Is architecture a conservative cultural product?

servicing a given producer consumer system Should architecture's affiliative ties with capitalism be subjected to a measure of criticism that can be expanded to the entirety of the cultural realm Is architecture's infusion into the cultural the reason for the visibility of architecture today What room does the city leave for architecture beyond the present delirium of spectacle Should the thematic of various New Left criticisms of capitalism be taken as the premise of architectural criticism Or alternatively putting the notion of criticality aside is it enough to confine criticism to the production of insightful and pleasurable texts

Architecture in China Philip Jodidio, 2007 The past five years have seen a revolution in Chinese architecture the emergence of independent designers and a number of new stars and above all new and interesting buildings that are not the product of direct Western influence These developments have laid the groundwork for an indigenous modernity that differentiates itself from outside schools as well as eschewing the temptation to put a Chinese style roof on ordinary office blocks The fact that Beijing has been chosen to host the 2008 Summer Olympic Games has been more than a catalyst for the development of high quality contemporary architecture in China Major foreign firms like OMA Rem Koolhaas or Herzog de Meuron are participating in the design of buildings that will have functions during the Games but Chinese architects too have been mobilized in this massive effort to prepare the country for an unprecedented level of world wide attention Architects featured Atelier Deshaus FCJZ Atelier Feichang Jianzhu AZL Atelier Zhanglei EDGE Design Institute Fake Design Herzog de Meuron HHF Architects Arata Isozaki Jiakun Architects Kengo Kuma Li Xiaodong Atelier MAD MADA s p a m Michael Maltzan Toshiko Mori NODE Architecture OMA Rem Koolhaas Pei Zhu URBANUS Architecture Design Wang Hui Zhu Xiaofeng Scenic Architecture TASCHEN's new architecture series brings a unique perspective to world architecture highlighting architectural trends by country Each book features 15 to 20 architects from the firmly established to the up and coming with the focus on how they have contributed to very recent architecture in the chosen nation Entries include contact information and short biographies in addition to copiously illustrated descriptions of the architects or firms most significant recent projects Crossing the globe from country to country this new series celebrates the richly hued architectural personality of each nation featured

China Homegrown Andong Lu, Pingping Dou, 2019-02-07 Today architecture in China is at a watershed Over the last decade rapid urbanisation and the burgeoning economy turned the country into a playground for the world's signature architects making it possible to realise extravagant forms and structures at a vast scale The Chinese government has now drawn a line under this phenomenon by issuing a directive calling an end to the oversized xenocentric weird buildings devoid of character or cultural heritage that have sprung up across the country requiring that urban architecture be suitable economic green and pleasing to the eye This government directive comes at a time when homegrown architecture has become increasingly self assured and reflective in its approach A new generation of architects in China in their 30s and 40s are emerging and in a wholly contemporary way they are exploring local responses to often bewildering urban and rural conditions and serious social and environmental challenges This is often expressed through a revival of interest in traditional street patterns courtyards and gardens At the same time architects are also recognising the opportunities to harness the potential of China s established manufacturing base to develop prefabricated building systems Innovative practices are employing new modes of working such as research based studio teaching and exhibitions field workshops cross disciplinary collaboration laboratory based practice design think tanks and collective projects generating a vibrant culture of design research Contributors Lu Feng Murray Fraser Xiao Fu and Wei You Xiaohong Hua and Shen Zhuang Xinggang Li Yichun Liu James Shen Yehao Song Hui Wang Shuo Wang Xin Wang and Qiuye Jin Philip F Yuan and Xiang Wang Li Zhang Xin Zhang and Jingxiang Zhu Featured architects Archi Union Architects Atelier Archmixing Atelier Deshaus Atelier Li Xinggang Integrated Architecture Studio LanD Studio META Project People s Architecture Office SUP Atelier URBANUS and Zaoyuan Gardening Studio China's Architecture in a Globalizing World: Between Socialism and the Market Jiawen Han,2017-12-12 China is currently in the midst of an unprecedented building boom and indeed interest in Chinese contemporary architecture has been fuelled by this huge expansion Through a cutting edge theoretical discussion of Chinese architecture in relation to Chinese modernity this book examines this phenomenon in detail In particular it highlights how changes in the social political system the residual influence of Mao and the demands of the market have each shaped and determined style and form in recent years Using key case studies of Liu Jiakun Cui Kai and URBANUS it analyses the intricate details of historical pressures and practical strategies affecting Chinese architecture In doing so it demonstrates that Chinese architects contribute in specific ways to the international architectural discourse since they are actively engaging with the complex societal transition of contemporary China and managing the dynamics and conflicts arising during the process China s Architecture in a Globalizing World Between Socialism and the Market offers a lens into the innovation and uniqueness of architectural design in China As such this book will be useful for students and scholars of architecture Chinese culture and society and urban studies New Chinese Architecture Laurence King Publishing,2009-06-10 Over the last five years China has experienced an unprecedented boom in architecture and has become the most dynamic and active region in the world The complex fusion of both Chinese and Western influences has given its architecture a unique style This comprehensive wide ranging book showcases the most exciting projects of recent years with extensive imagery together with clear line drawings It covers buildings all over China and of every type and scale houses schools universities offices retail spaces galleries and museums Across its 480 pages this book provides the most complete survey of contemporary Chinese architecture to date and will be indispensable for
