Notes From A Dead House:

Notes from a Dead House Fyodor Dostoevsky, 2015-03-24 From the acclaimed translators Richard Pevear and Larissa Volokhonsky comes a new translation of the first great prison memoir Fyodor Dostoevsky's fictionalized account of his life changing penal servitude in Siberia In 1849 Dostoevsky was sentenced to four years at hard labor in a Siberian prison camp for his participation in a utopian socialist discussion group The account he wrote after his release based on notes he smuggled out was the first book to reveal life inside the Russian penal system The book not only brought him fame but also founded the tradition of Russian prison writing Notes from a Dead House sometimes translated as The House of the Dead is filled with vivid details of brutal punishments shocking conditions feuds and betrayals and the psychological effects of the loss of freedom but it also describes moments of comedy and acts of kindness There are grotesque bathhouse and hospital scenes that seem to have come straight from Dante's Inferno alongside daring escape attempts doomed acts of defiance and a theatrical Christmas celebration that draws the entire community together in a temporary suspension of their grim reality To get past government censors Dostoevsky made his narrator a common law criminal rather than a political prisoner but the perspective is unmistakably his own His incarceration was a transformative experience that nourished all his later works particularly Crime and Punishment Dostoevsky's narrator discovers that even among the most debased criminals there are strong and beautiful souls His story reveals the prison as a tragedy both for the inmates and for Russia it is finally a profound meditation on freedom The prisoner himself knows that he is a prisoner but no brands no fetters will make him forget that he is a human being

The House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoevsky, 2022-04-14 Close your eyes and imagine the horrors of being sentenced to hard labour at an isolated Siberian prison camp The torturous conditions the brutality of the guards and the suffering of your everyday life The House of the Dead is a semi autobiographical novel by Fyodor Dostoevsky The author uses autofiction to be able to use facts fiction and to discuss topics that have happened to him while he was imprisoned The primitive conditions and horrifying episodes in the prison camp mirror the author's own exile in such a camp for four years in 1849 The novel focuses on the exploration of the Russian character mostly depicted in times of trouble and hardship The themes of crime punishment and isolation run potent in this haunting novel where the reader has to suffer and endure the arduous path through the house of the dead in order to be born again into freedom A five star reading recommendation Fyodor Dostoevsky 1821-1881 was a famous Russian writer of novels short stories and essays A connoisseur of the troubled human psyche and the relationships between the individuals Dostoevsky's oeuvre covers a large area of subjects politics religion social issues philosophy and the uncharted realms of the psychological There have been at least 30 film and TV adaptations of Fyodor Dostoevsky's 1866 novel Crime and Punishment with probably the most popular being the British BBC TV series starring John Simm as Raskolnikov and Ian McDiarmid as Porfiry Petrovich The Idiot has also been adapted for films and TV as has Demons and The Brothers Karamazov

The House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoevsky, 2022-11-13

In The House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoyevsky intricately weaves a semi autobiographical narrative that delves into the grim realities of life in a Siberian labor camp. This profound work is marked by its psychological depth and existential themes, exploring the dehumanization and moral complexities faced by the inmates. Through rich descriptions and a starkly realist style, Dostoyevsky captures the harshness of their environment while probing into the inner lives of his characters, highlighting their struggles with guilt, redemption, and humanity against a backdrop of societal corruption and despair. Dostoyevsky's own harrowing experiences in a Siberian prison, following his involvement with radical political groups, significantly influenced his writing of this novel. These personal trials, coupled with his deep philosophical inquiries into faith and morality, shed light on the desperation and resilience displayed in The House of the Dead. The novel is not merely a reflection of his captivity but a critical examination of the human condition, underscored by the author's poignant insights into morality and spirituality. I highly recommend The House of the Dead to readers who seek a profound exploration of the human psyche and ethical dilemmas. It is an essential read that invites contemplation and empathy, providing a powerful lens through which to understand suffering, redemption, and the enduring strength of the human spirit.

Notes From A Dead House Dostoevsky Fyodor Dostoyevsky, 1862. The narrator Aleksandr Petrovich Goryanchikov has been sentenced to deportation to Siberia and ten years of hard labour for murdering his wife. Life in prison is particularly hard for Aleksandr Petrovich since he is a gentleman and suffers the malice of the other prisoners nearly all of whom belong to the peasantry Gradually Goryanchikov overcomes his revulsion at his situation and his fellow convicts undergoing a spiritual re awakening that culminates with his release from the camp It is a work of great humanity Dostoevsky portrays the inmates of the prison with sympathy for their plight and also expresses admiration for their energy ingenuity and talent He concludes that the existence of the prison with its absurd practices and savage corporal punishments is a tragic fact both for the prisoners and for Russia

Redemption and the Merchant God Susan McReynolds Oddo, 2008 Dostoyevsky's antisemitism manifested in his writings of the 1870s seems to contradict his humanism and many critics have tended to dismiss it as a marginal detail of the writer's views Argues however that antisemitism held an important place in Dostoyevsky's ethical system and was linked to his vexed relationship with Christianity Notes that he staunchly held three ethical principles sanctity of children incompatibility of ethics with utilitarianism and calculation and the view that every kind of authority was bound by the same moral strictures as individuals Thus he could not accept a God who had sacrificed his son or a redemption brought about by the suffering of a child Jesus Dostoyevsky invented the image of a Jew onto whom he could project everything that was unacceptable to him in religion and Western ethics He considered the merchant ethics of both liberalism and socialism to be a Jewish idea and in particular regarded the politics of the Jew Disraeli as an embodiment of such ethics to sacrifice innocent Balkan Slavs in the name of supreme political principles In the 1870s Dostoyevsky increasingly contrasted the Russian conception of God and compassion for the weak with the Jewish Western merchant God and the idea of obtaining benefits for one person from the suffering of another innocent person He developed a conception of principal opposition between things Russian and things Jewish

Dostoyevsky in the Face of Death Julia Kristeva, 2023-12-19 Julia Kristeva has been both attracted and repelled by Dostoyevsky since her youth In this extraordinary book by turns poetic and intensely personal she brings her unique critical sensibility to bear on the tormented and visionary Russian author Kristeva ranges widely across Dostoyevsky's novels and his journalism plunging deep into the great works and many of the smaller ones to investigate her fascination with the Russian author What emerges is a luminous vision of the writer's achievements seen in a wholly new way through Kristeva's distinctive perspective on language With her keen psychoanalytical eye she offers brilliant insights into the passionate heroines of the great novels Focusing on Dostoyevsky's polyphonic writing Kristeva also demonstrates the importance of Orthodox Christianity throughout his body of work analyzing the complex ways his carnivalesque theology informs his fiction and commentary An original and profound interpretation of one of the nineteenth century's greatest writers this book's insights are also relevant to the twentieth and twenty first centuries up to our unsettled present to which Kristeva's humane reading of the suffering Russian author brings understanding and even solace

Memoirs from the House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoyevsky, 2001 In this almost documentary account of his own experiences of penal servitude in Serbia

Dostoevsky describes the physical and mental suffering of the convicts the squalor and the degradation in relentless detail The intricate procedure whereby the men strip for the bath without removing their ten pound leg fetters is an extraordinary tour de force compared by Turgenev to passages from Dante's Inferno Terror and resignation the rampages of a psychopath the brief serene interlude of Christmas Day are evoked by Dostoevsky writing several years after his release with a strikingly uncharacteristic detachment For this reason House of the Dead is certainly the least Dostoevskian of his works yet paradoxically it ranks among his great masterpieces

Notes from the House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoevsky, 2013-06-11 Master translation of a neglected Russian classic into English Long before Solzhenitsyn's Gulag Archipelago came Dostoevsky's Notes from the House of the Dead a compelling account of the horrific conditions in Siberian labor camps First published in 1861 this novel based on Dostoevsky's own experience as a political prisoner is a forerunner of his famous novels Crime and Punishment and The Brothers Karamazov The characters and situations that Dostoevsky encountered in prison were so violent and extraordinary that they changed his psyche profoundly Through that experience he later said he was resurrected into a new spiritual condition one in which he would create some of the greatest novels ever written Including an illuminating introduction by James Scanlan on Dostoevsky's prison years this totally new translation by Boris Jakim captures Dostoevsky's semi autobiographical narrative at times coarse at times intensely emotional at times philosophical in rich American English for generations Whether you are new to Dostoevsky or a devoted fan The House of the Dead will leave you reflecting on the universal themes of suffering hope and the enduring strength of the soul Embark on a journey through one of Dostoevsky's most personal and thought provoking works a story that resonates across time and space      A Picture Held Us Captive Tea Lobo, 2019-05-20 While there are publications on Wittgenstein's interest in Dostoevsky's novels and the recurring mentions of Wittgenstein in Sebald's works there has been no systematic scholarship on the relation between perception such as showing and pictures and the problem of an adequate presentation of interiority such as intentions or pain for these three thinkers This relation is important in Wittgenstein's treatment of the subject and in his private language argument but it is also an often overlooked motif in both Dostoevsky's and Sebald's works Dostoevsky's depiction of mindset discrepancies in a rapidly modernizing Russia can be analyzed in terms of multi aspectivity The theatricality of his characters demonstrates especially well Wittgenstein's account of interiority's interrelatedness with overt public practices and codes In Sebald's Austerlitz Wittgenstein's notion of family resemblances is an aesthetic strategy within the novel Visual tropes are most obviously present in Sebald's use of photography and can partially be read as an ethical aesthetic imperative of rendering pain visible Tea Lobo's book contributes towards a non Cartesian account of literary presentations of inner life based on Wittgenstein's thought
