Film Stardom in South East Asia Jonathan Driskell, 2022-02-17 Throughout Southeast Asia film stars hold an important place in popular culture. They feature prominently in magazines and newspapers on billboards and cinema marquees at public events and premieres and on the internet and social media. Southeast Asian cinemas have built their own distinctive star systems which have produced a host of successful icons. These stars often possess the features of stardom commonly noted in film scholarship such as glamour and charisma while simultaneously offering nationally and regionally specific inflections of the phenomenon embodying local tastes, values and ideologies. Stars such as Ananda Everingham in Thailand, P Ramlee in Malaysia and Nora Aunor in the Philippines have all reached significant levels of fame in their respective countries. And yet there is little academic work focusing on Southeast Asia's stars. Film Stardom in Southeast Asia addresses this neglect by examining how stars shape the marketing, business and economics of their industries, contribute to the meanings and popularity of their films and give insight into the social and political contexts of life in Southeast Asia.

Most Popular New Line Cinema Films Wikipedia contributors, Word-of-Mouth in Contemporary Hollywood Simon Hewitt, 2023-07-26 Word of Mouth in Contemporary Hollywood provides a unique insight into the potential for online communication to enable audiences to exert a greater impact on film industrial practices than ever before. In an overarching analysis of contemporary Hollywood film financing, marketing, distribution and exhibition practices, Simon Hewitt recontextualises word of mouth in light of social media and examines the growing impact of audience participation. Using a Bourdieueconomic approach, he applies qualitative research methods to better understand the contemporary Hollywood film audience, the contemporary Hollywood film industry and the mechanisms that connect the two. The book explores new film financing mechanisms that incorporate fans into the packages used to secure production funds. It assesses the role of Grassroots Intermediaries in contemporary film marketing campaigns. It critiques democratic crowdsourced methods of film distribution and finally it considers the possible future of Hollywood film exhibition. By helping to bridge the gap between the gift economy and commodity culture, this book will appeal to students and scholars of media industry studies, media finance and economics, fan and audience studies, film studies, film history and media marketing.

Franchise Era Fleury James Fleury, 2019-04-01 As Hollywood shifts towards the digital era, the role of the media franchise has become more prominent. This edited collection from a range of international scholars argues that the franchise is now an integral element of American media culture. As such, the collection explores the production, distribution and marketing of franchises as a historical form of media making, analysing the complex industrial practice of managing franchises across interconnected online platforms. Examining how traditional media incumbents like studios and networks have responded to the rise of new entrants from the technology sector such as Facebook, Apple, Amazon, Netflix and Google, the authors take a critical look at the way new and old industrial logics collide in an increasingly fragmented and consolidated mediascape.
