Palliative Care for Care Homes Christine Reddall, 2009
Care home workers increasingly work with people nearing the end of their lives including people with medically complex conditions. However, many do not have a medical background and find that practical advice on how to address these people's very specific needs is scarce. In this book, Christine Reddall draws on almost four decades of nursing experience to create a clear and easy-to-read handbook primarily for workers caring for the dying in care homes but which will also be of interest to family members caring for relatives with life-threatening conditions. This is a resource book to provide information on palliative care. It is designed primarily to help carers who work in care homes of all categories. To my knowledge, this is the first book written solely for carers working in care homes that addresses the issues of caring for someone with palliative care needs. However, people with whom I have spoken to about this book or who have read parts of it have all said that it would also be a helpful resource to non-professional family carers who care for a family member in their own home. The style of this book is designed to be readable by all levels of carers and I have endeavoured to keep the language and text as non-medical as possible. I have tried to put myself in the shoes of carers, especially those without medical training, and think of what they want to know when caring for someone with a life-threatening illness. Christine Reddall in her Preface

Emergencies in Supportive and Palliative Care David Currow, Katherine Clark, Paul Kleinig, 2024-01-25
Fully revised according to up-to-date clinical guidance, this second edition provides a practical, accessible guide to emergency situations encountered in the practice of supportive and palliative care. Designed for rapid use, it addresses the immediate clinical challenges while more definitive measures are being put in place. Structured around frequently encountered symptoms, the book is split into two sections. The first section explores how patients with life-limiting illnesses such as cancer, AIDS, and end-stage organ failure normally present and looks at the reversibility of their condition. The second section provides a detailed approach to specific clinical conditions and is for use once the clinical diagnosis has been reached on the basis of the presenting symptoms. An improved order to the table of contents for this edition matches clinical practice. Guiding the decision-making process is an understanding of where the patient is on their disease trajectory. The book uses three categories: terminal, deteriorating, and stable, which consider how the patient's needs are changing as their disease progresses. A brand new chapter, 'Care at the end of life', outlines good clinical care for the last hours/days of life when the diagnosis of dying has been actively made. The book provides trainees in palliative medicine, nurses, family doctors, and other allied health professionals with a pocket guide to the emergency care of people requiring supportive and palliative care and it complements and cross-refers to the Oxford Handbook of Palliative Care.
