PDF is a file format for document exchange, designed to be used across different platforms. It is a highly compressed file format that preserves the layout and content of the original document, including text, images, and graphics. PDF files are widely used for sharing documents, such as reports, contracts, and presentations, as they are easy to read and can be viewed on most devices.

PDF files are created by a process called "PDF creation". This process involves taking the content of a document and converting it into a format that can be read by a PDF reader. The content can be in any format, such as text, images, or graphics, and can be combined into a single document. PDF files are often used for sharing documents, such as reports, contracts, and presentations, as they are easy to read and can be viewed on most devices.
