Punishment in the New South Martha A. Myers,1998 For Emile Durkheim writing in the nineteenth century punishment was simply understood as a clear response to the criminal behavior a society experiences Today s penal institutions challenge such a simple understanding Inseparably linked with many aspects of society they are profoundly shaped by the traumatic events and changes a society undergoes Nowhere is this clearer than in the American South Georgia embraced the concept of the penitentiary as a form of social control earlier than most of its southern neighbors Its penal code of 1816 replaced or curtailed such traditional punishments as whipping the pillory fines or death Georgia s control over felony convicts effectively began in 1817 when the state prison at Milledgeville accepted its first convict Martha A Myers finds that Georgia also led the region in embracing the convict lease system as an alternative to incarceration In Race Labor and Punishment in the New South she examines the social political and economic forces that shaped punishment over a seventy year period Between 1870 and 1940 Georgia s system of punishment shifted from capital and corporal punishment to hard labor in the penitentiary then to the convict lease system then to county run chain gangs and then back to incarceration in prison This book forges a connection between these dramatic shifts and analyzes three facets of punishment for black and white men rates of admission to the penitentiary the harshness of sentences and the ease with which felons achieved release from the penitentiary Her findings challenge the conventional notion that hard times invariably prompt harsh punishment In uncovering the complex link between social change and southern punishment Myers reveals the poverty of current theories of
