Online Happy City Transforming Through Design:

Happy City: Transforming Our Lives Through Urban Design Charles Montgomery, 2013-11-12 A journalist travels the world and investigates current socioeconomic theories of happiness to discover why most modern cities are designed to make us miserable what we can do to change this and why we have more to learn from poor cities than from prosperous ones

Pedestrian-Friendly Cities Everett Sinclair, AI, 2025-03-04 Pedestrian Friendly Cities explores the crucial role of walkability in modern urban planning arguing that prioritizing pedestrian centered design enhances public health environmental sustainability and community revitalization It challenges the car centric planning of the 20th century which led to sprawling suburbs and a decline in walkable neighborhoods and demonstrates that consciously designing for pedestrians can significantly improve urban life Cities were historically pedestrian friendly offering lessons for today's urban planners seeking to create more livable spaces The book examines design strategies like mixed use zoning and traffic calming presenting case studies of successful pedestrian friendly cities It demonstrates how prioritizing walking can lead to longer healthier lives for residents and stronger community bonds By integrating architecture with public health considerations the book offers a holistic perspective emphasizing that creating walkable cities involves more than just sidewalks it requires a fundamental shift in urban planning philosophy Beginning with foundational concepts the book progresses to analyze specific design strategies concluding with a practical guide for implementing pedestrian friendly principles It addresses the interconnectedness of urban design individual well being and environmental sustainability making it a valuable resource for urban planners policymakers and community advocates aiming to create thriving resilient urban environments

Happy by Design Ben Channon, 2023-11-15 Can good design truly make us happier Given that we spend over 80% of our time in buildings shouldn't we have a better understanding of how they make us feel Happy by Design explores the ways in which buildings spaces and cities affect our moods It reveals how architecture and design can make us happy and support mental health and explains how poor design can have the opposite effect Presented through a series of easy to understand design tips and accompanied by beautiful diagrams and illustrations Happy by Design is a fantastic resource for architects designers and students or for anybody who would like to better understand the relationship between buildings and happiness With the pandemic and cost of living crisis the importance of designing for mental wellbeing has never been higher on the agenda Whether through low energy design designing in better ventilation to avoid passing on pathogens or the realisation of the importance of accessing nature within an environment this revised edition has been updated to reflect a changed world

Events in the City Andrew Smith, 2015-11-19 Cities are staging more events than ever Within this macro trend there is another less acknowledged trend more events are being staged in public spaces Some events have always been staged in parks streets and squares but in recent years events have been taken out of traditional venues and staged in prominent urban spaces This is favoured by organisers seeking more memorable and more spectacular events but also by authorities who want to animate urban space and make it more visible This book explains these trends and outlines the implications for public spaces Events play a positive role in our cities but turning public spaces into venues is often controversial Events can denigrate as well as animate city space they are part of the commercialisation privatisation and securitisation of public space noted by commentators in recent years The book focuses on examples from London in particular but it also covers a range of other cities from the developed world Events at different scales are addressed and there is dedicated coverage of sports events and cultural events This topical and timely volume provides valuable material for higher level students researchers and academics from events studies urban studies and development studies School Farms Alshimaa Aboelmakarem Farag,Samaa Badawi,Gurpinder Lalli,Maya Kamareddine,2021-11-28 This book highlights the potential of school farms to fight hunger and malnutrition by providing access to locally produced fresh and healthy food as well as providing young students with educational opportunities to learn interact with nature and develop their skills Hunger is one of the most pressing concerns we face today and there is a clear need to provide alternative sources of food to feed a fast growing population School farms offer a sustainable opportunity to produce food locally in order to feed underprivileged students who rely on school meals as an integral part of their daily diet Approaching the concept of school farms through four themes Problem People Process and Place the book shows how they can play an essential role in providing sustainable and healthy food for students the critical role educational institutions can play in promoting this process and the positive impact hands on farming can have on students mental and physical wellbeing Utilizing the authors personal hands on experiences and drawing on global case studies the book provides a theoretical framework and practical guidance to help with the establishment of school farms and community based gardening projects and an education system which promotes a sustainable and healthy approach to food agriculture and the environment This book will be essential reading for students and scholars of food security agriculture healthy and sustainable diets education for sustainable development and urban studies It will also be of great interest to practitioners and policymakers involved in food policy developing school and community projects global health and international development as well as education professionals
