Choreomania Kéline Gotman,2018 When political protest is read as epidemic madness religious ecstasy as nervous disease and angular dance moves as dark and uncouth the disorder being described is choreomania At once a catchall term to denote spontaneous gestures and the unruly movements of crowds choreomania emerged in the nineteenth century at a time of heightened class conflict nationalist policy and colonial rule In this book author Kéline Gotman examines these choreographies of unrest rethinking the modern formation of the choreomania concept as it moved across scientific and social scientific disciplines Reading archives describing dramatic misformations of bodies and body politics she shows how prejudices against expressivity unravel in turn revealing widespread anxieties about demonstrative agitation This history of the fitful body complements stories of nineteenth century discipline and regimentation As she notes constraints on movement imply constraints on political power and agency In each chapter Gotman confronts the many ways choreomania works as an extension of discourses shaping colonialist orientalism which alternately depict riotous bodies as dangerously infected others and as curious bacchanalian remains Through her research Gotman also shows how beneath the radar of this colonial discourse men and women gathered together to repossess on their terms the gestures of social revolt

This unique book is vital reading for scholars of medieval literature and historians of medieval Europe as well as scholars of visual culture and museum studies. Medievalisms Liliana Sikorska, Joanna Maciulewicz, 2008. The continuous interest in medieval literature history and culture has resulted in a significant number of works on medievalism. Medievalism however has many faces which range from motifs and themes loosely connected with the Middle Ages to works set in the period. This book explores all such diverse aspects of medievalism and attempts to show the different ways in which consecutive literary periods appropriated medieval literature and culture. Defining Medievalism(s) Karl Fugelso, 2009. New essays attempt to survey and map out the increasingly significant discipline of medievalism. Medievalism has been attracting considerable scholarly attention in recent years. But it is also suffering from something of an identity crisis. Where are its chronological and geographical boundaries? How does it relate to the Middle Ages? Does it comprise neomedievalism, pseudomedievalism, and other medievalisms? Studies in Medievalism XVII directly addresses these and related questions via a series of specially commissioned essays from some of the most well-known scholars in the field. They explore its origins, survey the growth of the subject, and attempt various definitions. The volume then presents seven articles that often test the boundaries of medievalism: they look at echoes of medieval bestiaries in J. K. Rowling's Harry Potter books; the influence of the Nibelungenlied on Wagner's Ring cycle; representations of King Alfred in two works by Dickens; medieval tropes in John Bale's Reformist plays; authenticity in Sigrid Undset's novel; Kristin Lavransdatter; incidental medievalism in Handel's opera Rodelinda; and editing in the audio version of Seamus Heaney's Beowulf. Making the Past Present Paul Robichaud, 2007-05. The importance of David Jones 1895-1974 as a major modern poet has been increasingly recognized during the past few decades through a growing critical appreciation of In Parenthesis 1937, The Anathemata 1952, and The Sleeping Lord 1974. Praised by poets as diverse as T. S. Eliot, W. H. Auden, Hugh MacDiarmid, Seamus Heaney, and W. S. Merwin, Jones is a writer whose work challenges established critical boundaries between periods, styles, and genres. In Making the Past Present, Paul Robichaud offers an innovative exploration of Jones' poetry that aims to help readers overcome challenges to a fuller appreciation of his work. A persistent challenge for readers has been Jones' turn to the Middle Ages for inspiration and example. Although Jones' medievalism has hindered his acceptance into the academic modernist canon, the Middle Ages are central to his modernism as a continually questioned and constructed source of cultural values. Making the Past Present explores the significance of Jones' medievalism in its modernist contexts while providing readers with detailed information on central but often unfamiliar allusions. Robichaud charts the growth of Jones' medievalism.

from his earliest Pre Raphaelite influences showing how his commitment to modernist aesthetics transformed his vision of the Middle Ages In considering his obsession with medieval Wales this study shows how Jones engaged with contemporary Welsh and Arthurian scholarship to construct a vision of Wales that is both a modernist symbol of cultural wholeness and an imagined community in tandem with the development of Welsh cultural nationalism Robichaud argues that the tension between vernacular and Latin cultures in Jones poetry reflects his concern over the modern relationship between national and European cultural interests an intellectual context shared with T S Eliot and the historian Christopher Dawson The impact of medieval on modernist aesthetics receives a sustained analysis in a reading of Jones in relation to James Joyce Jacques Maritain and Wilhelm Worringer Studies in Medieval and Renaissance Teaching ,2008 Race and Racism in Theory and Practice Berel Lang,2000-01-10 This collection of original essays by scholars from a diverse range of fields examines issues of race in a variety of historical and geographical settings ranging from classical Greece to the contemporary Americas Europe and Asia The authors provide an important perspective on race both in its theoretical origins and in its actual appearances while paying close attention to the ways in which the study of race itself has been carried on or ignored by various disciplines The Churchman ,1882 The Journal of Pre-Raphaelite Studies ,2001 The New Yorker Harold Wallace Ross,William Shawn,Tina Brown,David Remnick,Katharine Sergeant Angell White,Rea Irvin,Roger Angell,1951 Kleio ,2000 Littell's Living Age ,1908 The Union Bulletin ,1921 The Living Age ,1908
