Backley, Don Boyer honored as state's best science instructor

By Don Stevenson
The States Press

Backley science teacher Don Boyer has added one more honor to his growing list of national and state awards.

The White River High School science department director returned from the White House this week, where he accepted the 2002 National Science Foundation Award as the state's first science teacher. Backley teachers from White and Backley also were honored.

The Friday, Boyer will be in Philadelphia for pick up a Master Teacher Award awarded to outstanding science teachers in each state.

Five years ago Boyer won the Washington Award for Excellence in Education and followed it this year with a $25,000 award from the Milken Family Foundation.

"Teaching is such a dynamic thing," Boyer said Monday. "The fun is in preparing to present what we will perform in teaching."

For example, Boyer enjoys relating science to real world situations and issues.

The students this year are studying the DNA in nature and looking for genetic differences between cells in the spring and fall White River runs.

"We're looking to see if the patterns are different in the spring and fall runs to see whether there's any seasonal differences," he said. "They're the same evolutionary species, but we're looking to see how they're different."

But as important as the science are the relationships Boyer builds with students.

"To really do what I believe what makes you're teaching," said Boyer, 47. "The curriculum isn't all that's here and the students should have almost all their confidence and their work ethic."

Karen Blank, principal at White River
